KING'S BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION: HONOURS LIST

WANCHAI ROOFTOP CHASE

BANDIT COUP FOILED

ONE MAN CAUGHT:
OTHER
ESCAPES WITH $300

RAIDERS ARRIVE IN CAR

Up-to-date methods were employed by armed gangsters in a coup at No. 8 Wood Road, on the Wanchai Reclamation, on Saturday afternoon.

They drove up to the house in a hire car, and had also planned to get away in it, while telling the driver to wait. The man, whom they had intended to bring in as an unwilling accessory, however, proved to be nimble-witted. He communicated his suspicions to the Police, and the robbers were disturbed in the midst of putting over their deal.

Following a dramatic appearance by the Police, one man was caught red-handed, while the other of the two concerned in the attempt, succeeded in eluding the officers. He got through a trap door and streaked across the house-tops, finally jumping to the ground and escaping.

DEMAND FOR $10,000.

The house was occupied by the Tung Wah Land Investment Company, Limited, whose manager, Lai Hin-man, also lived with his family on one of the floors.

At 2.10 p.m. he was in the office on the first floor, when two men entered, one of whom was known to him as Lo Hoi Tung. He was surprised when Lo asked him to give them $10,000, and realised the situation when both men drew revolvers which they had stuck under their girdles.

Such a big sum was not to be available in an instant, he told them, and so half-an-hour was spent in discussing the pros and cons of the case. Sensing that something more than an ordinary business transaction was taking place, the wife and kids of the manager came down from their quarters, and the gangsters then showed themselves really "terrible."

$1,000 HANDED OVER.

They threatened to shoot, and shoot without hesitation if the money was not produced. His persuasive powers exhausted, the manager was compelled to open a safe, and from this, the gangsters took a wallet, containing nearly a thousand dollars in cash.

They were disappointed, apparently having expected more, and while engaged in further argument with the manager, the Police warned by the car-driver over the telephone, came in.

The gangster known as Lo Hoi-tung was fairly trapped, but, his companion was able to slip up the staircase, whence he got on to the housetops and escaped.

At the back of the house, the Police picked up a loaded revolver and some spare rounds of ammunition. It was rusty and unserviceable, and was apparently dropped by the escaped man. His name and description have since been supplied to the Police. He got clear away with about $300.

TWO MORE ARRESTS.

Two men, believed to be other members of the same gang, found in possession of pistols, but not actually concerned in the robbery, have been arrested at Mongkok.

Mr. Lai Hin-man is the proprietor of the Kowloon Hotel.

VIOLENT STORM OVER FRANCE

HUGE HAILSTONES
AT TARBES

MAYOR KILLED

Paris, June 4.

Glorious summer weather over the whole of France, which like England, has begun to have anxieties regarding water supplies, was violently broken during the week-end.

Immense damage was done in many parts of France in the course of Saturday and Sunday in a storm of exceptional severity, which was accompanied by a spectacular lightning display, hail and torrential rain.

Two men, including the Mayor of Lam-el-Ouze, near Nimes, were killed and a woman was seriously injured.

FOUR-OUNCE HAILSTONE.

The district of Tarbes was visited by a terrific hailstorm. Hailstones, reported to have weighed as much as four ounces, fell so violently that they penetrated the roofs of houses and rebounded to a height of thirty feet when they struck the roads. Thousands of acres of crops and orchards were devastated.—Reuter.

WHEN A SHOWER BECOMES NEWS

Drought Broken Over The Rockies

New York, June 3.

The disastrous drought has broken in the Rocky Mountains where light rains have fallen. More is expected.

In the meantime, churches in the drought area were to-day crammed with people praying for rain.

Minnesota, North Dakota and Wisconsin are calling out the National Guard to enforce the embargo on shipments of livestock to these States for grazing. Very heavy rain and hail is reported from Nebraska, while showers have occurred in Indiana, Missouri and Illinois.

A sweltering heat wave persists over all the Eastern States.—Reuter.

SNOW FALLS IN NORTH CHINA

STRANGE CHARHAR WEATHER

Kalgan, June 4.

Charhar districts, especially Changpei and Kuyuen have experienced severe cold weather in the past two days. Changpei and Kuyuen were submerged under one foot of snow on Saturday.—Central News.

SOVIET DENIES FIRING

REPLY TO MANCHUKUO PROTEST ON AMUR INCIDENT

Moscow, June 4.

A complete denial of the alleged shooting by Russian frontier guards on a Manchukuo steamer is given by the Commissariat for Foreign Affairs.

Replying to the Manchukuo protest regarding the alleged firing on the steamer Dieben on the Amur River on May 12, when one sailor was killed and another wounded, the Soviet insists that the casualties were not caused by the Soviet guards, who fired into the air.

The Soviet reply cites a report in a Manchurian newspaper to the effect that the steamer was

His Majesty King George V., who celebrated his 60th birthday yesterday, shaking hands with some of his subjects whilst riding in Hyde Park.

ICELAND QUAKE

SERIOUS DAMAGE REPORTED

NO CASUALTIES

Reykjavik, June 3.

The greater part of Iceland was violently shaken by an earthquake yesterday.

Considerable damage was done in all parts of the country, although the inhabitants were extremely fortunate and as far as is at present known, there were no casualties.

The quake was the most violent experienced in the region within living memory.

Roads were torn up and telephone poles thrown down, the stores in some of the houses burst and set the buildings on fire.

Timber houses in the village of Galvik were completely wrecked. The terrified villagers rushed into the open and are now living in tents.—Reuter.

(By Telegraph Copyright, Telegraphic Message Ordinance, 1921. Received June 4, 6.22 a.m.)

Lisbon, June 3. Every aeroplane carrying more than 2,000 kilograms will be required to be fitted with wireless as the result of a proposal adopted by the International Air Navigation Committee at its annual meeting here, which dealt with forty-two questions concerning aviation.—Reuter Special.

CHURCH SCHISM IN GERMANY

"FREE SYNOD" MANIFESTO

BISHOP MUELLER DEFIED

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph Copyright, Telegraphic Message Ordinance, 1921. Received June 4, 6.24 a.m.)

Berlin, June 3. An important development in the internal war in the German Church strikes a heavy blow at Nazi attempts to claim spiritual domination over the German people.

Following meetings at Bremen, the Free Reich Synod, consisting of representatives of all opposition elements in the Evangelical Church, has issued a manifesto rejecting in advance the Constitution which Reichsbishop Mueller is understood to be preparing.

While recognising the authority of the new State, the Synod stressed that there is no desire in the country to found a new church and characterises as false the doctrine that the Church can usurp State functions and become the organ of the State.

DEFINITE SCHISM.

The existence of a definite schism in the Church with Reichsbishop, Mueller and the German Christians on the one side and the body of all shades of Protestant belief claiming to represent the true Church, on the other, can now scarcely be ignored.—Reuter Special.

ANTI-GERMAN BLOC REPORT

Soviet Recognition Denied by Little Entente

SOME ISSUES STILL OUTSTANDING

Geneva, June 4.

The song that has been made about the consolidation of the anti-German bloc in Europe is not quite justified.

The report that the Little Entente Powers and Soviet Russia will exchange instruments of mutual recognition to-morrow is denied by a spokesman of the Little Entente.

He told Reuter that although the negotiations for the recognition of Russia by the Little Entente were well advanced, there were still some points outstanding between Russia and Rumania on the one hand and between Russia and Yugoslavia on the other.

The questions at issue will be discussed at the next meeting of the foreign ministers of the Little Entente which has been arranged for the middle of June.—Reuter.

BIG RE-FINANCING PROPOSALS

Washington, June 3.

The Government is now asking home investors for eight hundred million dollars in a Treasury financing operation which may finally reach a total of $1,320,000,000.

The second is an issue of $600,000,000 of five-year 2½th. per cent. Notes.

The Treasury has reserved the right to increase the bond issue by a maximum of $620,100,100, which will be enough to exchange new bonds for $176,000,000 of quarter-per-cent. certificates maturing on June 15, and $345,000,000 of 2½ per cent. notes maturing on August 1.

FAILED TO ATTRACT
MEN are attracted by beautiful lips, but only by lips that have the natural color of radiant health. No man wants to marry a woman who looks as if she used paint. The way to give your lips the youthful glow that men admire, without using that painted look, is Tangee Lipstick.

LOOKS ORANGE—ACTS ROSE
Tangee is not paint. Instead it changes color on your lips. In the sick Tangee looks orange, but put it on. It takes on the shade of rose most becoming to you. Tangee becomes a very part of you, instead of a greasy coating, hence is longer lasting than ordinary "paint" lipsticks. Moreover, Tangee is made with a special cream base, so that it soothes and softens lips while it adds to their allure. No drying, cracking or chapping when you use Tangee. Also in Tangee, a deeper shade for professional use.

UNTOUCHED—Lips left untouched are apt to have a faded look. make the freshest color.

PAINTED—Don't risk that painted look. It's concealing and not don't like it.

TANGE—Intensifies natural color, restores youthful appeal, ends that painted look.

NEW—Tangee Face Powder gives a soft underglow, makes the skin look younger. Contains the principle of Tangee Lipstick. Blends with your complexion, prevents powdery, mask-like effect.

DEATH OF SIR A. RAWLINSON

OFFICER WHO FIGURED IN TURKISH CAMPAIGN

London, June 2.

The death occurred to-day of Lieut.-Col. Sir Alfred Rawlinson, K.C.M.G., C.B.E., D.S.O., formerly of the Royal Garrison Artillery and a member of the Naval Volunteer Reserve.

Governor J. Rolf

San Jose, Calif., June 3.

The death occurred here to-day of Mr. James Rolf, Jr., Governor of the State of California, who recently gained world-wide publicity by expressing his approval of "Lynch Justice" for kidnappers.

Towards the end of last year, a large crowd broke into the State Prison at San Jose where two young men were waiting trial for the alleged kidnapping and murder of the son of a prominent San Francisco merchant. The prisoners were taken from the prison by the crowd, stripped, beaten and hanged to a tree.

Consternation was aroused throughout America and the whole world, but Mr. Rolf, who was Governor of the State, publicly praised the participants, stating they had performed a public service which was California's lesson to the wrong-doers of the country.

Mons. P. J. E. Illiaquer

A tribute to his prowess as an aviator during the War was paid by Monsieur de la Prade, the French Consul, in an oration at the graveside at the funeral on Saturday of Mons. P. J. E. Illiaquer, who died at the Canonian Hospital on Friday last, a victim of meningitis.

In the course of his address in French, Monsieur de la Prade mentioned that deceased had risen from the ranks to the post of Captain in aviation, and achieved great honour during the War.

A touching figure at the funeral was Mme. Illiaquer, wife of deceased, who was the chief mourner.

The Rev. Fr. Spada conducted the obsequies in the chapel and at the graveside.

There was a large gathering present, including Messrs. de la Prade, the French Consul-General, C. Renner, the Vice-Consul, P. de Roux, M. C. le Maitre, M. J. B. Montargis, M. Deleourt, R. E. M. Devaux, M. Evellie, J. Guerinneau, R. Gaubert, C. G. Fournier, C. de Orecourt, R. Aubrun, A. L. Brusset, P. L. Lorisgnol, M. and Mme. G. Veron, Mrs. Ott, Mr. W. McLenn, representing Messrs. Shewan Tomes & Co., and others.

Wreaths were sent from: "Wife and Father," Monsieur de la Prade, Maison F. Mathieu, Antwerp, A. L. Brusset, Georges Veron, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Barnes, Camille Le Maitre, Mr. and Mrs. Ott, R. Ohl, J. Guerinneau, M. Hardvilliers, H. Chan du Loi, Andre Lock, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Morant, Mme. J. Rambaut, Paul Meunier, F. W. Juge, the Banque de l'Indo-Chine, Messrs. Shewan Tomes & Co., Sister and Staff of the Canonian Hospital, Miss Daisy O'Keefe and others.

Mrs. A. F. de Silva

The funeral of Mrs. A. F. de Silva, who died at her residence in St. Joseph's Building on Friday afternoon, took place on Saturday at the Roman Catholic Cemetery. The deceased was a resident in the Colony for over thirty years, and was predeceased by her husband and only son.

The Rev. Fr. Spada officiated at the graveside.

The chief mourners were her nephews, Messrs. G. A. G. T., P. L., and C. F. Vaz. Others present were Messrs. V. M. Barradas and V. N. Nunes.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

For those who want a distinguished frock for afternoon wear, nothing could better answer the purpose than this smart model, which can be simply made in printed silk or satin or spring woolen. Designed in six sizes—32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42—size 16 requires 3 3/4 yards of 39-inch material, plus 3/4 yard contrast for the collar and cuffs.

LONDON FASHIONS

At Burlington House

Few of the portraits of women at this year's Academy reflect recent fashions, and on the whole artists have chosen what pleased themselves and their sitters and have endeavoured not to date their pictures by a too great emphasis on contemporary dress. But some of them are quick to record eyebrows, coiffures, and glossy red finger-nails.

Dame Laura Knight paints the Duchess of Rutland full length in a beautiful black evening gown that appears to be made of dull paillettes with a short black velvet cape trimmed with white fox. A pearl necklace and a pearl bracelet are worn, and the graceful line of the dress is emphasized against the shimmering blue silk of the banner background. Sir John Lavery is one of the few artists who are not afraid of erlap textures. His "Miss Diana Dickinson" has an Ascot-frock of creamy organza that shades mysteriously to a cyclamen tone towards the hem of her wide skirt; her hat is wide-brimmed in the modified "Romney" line that is among the season's choice for the coming summer. His "Lady Anna Rhyas" wears a dance frock of white organdie made with dropped shoulder line and knots of blue ribbon on the little puff sleeves. Her blue sash is of narrow ribbon.

The perfectly chosen clothes that give poise to a sitter are seen in the late Mr. Spencer Watson's portrait of Miss Marguerite Battle: she wears a collarless frock of black velvet caught at the throat by a double-headed diamond pin. A fur cape slips off her shoulders to show a white flower pinned at one side, and her fitted black Portia cap is worn serenely on her neatly dressed hair. Taffeta makes an occasional appearance. Miss Dorothy Selous-uses it skilfully in a blue ruffled evening wrap worn by a dignified white-haired lady in a cyclamen evening gown. "Lady Delamere," painted by Mr. John Hay, has a dress of jade green taffeta shot with gold. Mr. Cadogan Cowper paints a frilled red taffeta gown so crisply that it almost rustles.

The fashionable short cape is duly recorded. Mr. Campbell Taylor paints the hostess of "Forty-Seven Grosvenor Square" in a rich red velvet evening gown and a sable cape. Velvet appears again and again. Mr. James Gunn paints Mrs. Gerald Wellesley full length in an autumnal dinner gown of black velvet made on classical straight lines with long bell sleeves bordered in fur. Mr. W. de Glehn has a full-length portrait of Miss Jane Austen in a long-sleeved magenta velvet gown with a softly draped cowl neckline. Mr. Harold Knight gives a glimpse of a modern neckline in his head and shoulders of "Lillian," who has a white satin dress with the top folded in in silver lame. Mr. Brocklehurst records a beautifully arranged blue silk scarf worn by a young woman in a grey frock.

Too Much Protection

By Olive Robert Barton

A little girl strangely shy and retiring and treated like a delicate hot-house plant from the day of her birth, found herself at six in a select private school where she could mix with other children for the first time in her life.

One day she came home and said, "Mother, that's a dreadful place. One little girl called another a terrible name and the teacher just laughed."

"What was it, dear? What did the child say?"

"Oh, I couldn't tell you, mother. It was— She flushed painfully and stopped."

Her mother didn't press the matter then. But another day her daughter said, "I think something ought to be done about that girl. She's calling everyone that bad name and I keep away from her because I'm afraid she'll call me that too."

This time the mother decided to investigate. "Don't you think you could tell me? You could stand out in the hall and say it through the door very softly. I'll pretend it is the other little girl."

Shocking Name

Soon came a whisper. "She calls them all, 'Chop suey!'" And then the child flew to hide her head somewhere in her own room and bedroom and leave her mother to shudder over the depravity of her schoolmate.

It was probably just as well that she disappeared for her mother was not able for some minutes to smother her mirth.

But she did some real thinking. She had followed the family tradition of bringing up its girls, sheltered and secluded from worldly contamination until they were grown. She looked back on her own lovely, lonely childhood, spent in the nursery with a governess, then later in rarified schools with high walls that shut out the world and its realities until she was almost old enough to be married. Then she found herself married and living in a cosmopolitan city in a society that consisted of every sort of people including polite ruses and intriguing women. She was confused and unhappy with her puritan views and finally turned against all social contacts and sought shelter in a secluded country home where she saw very few people at all.

Facing Realities

She learned during that short period to distrust almost everyone because she had never succeeded in segregating the real from the worthless. Without defence and too highly sensitized it took her several years to adjust herself finally and learn to look upon people dispassionately, and to realize that many of her prejudices were undeserved and unfounded.

After a day or two she explained to her little girl that chop suey was something to eat and not a bad word at all. "Ask her to come home with you sometime, dear. I think she must be a lot of fun." Which proved to be true. She decided that her daughter needed a little more roughage, and a chance to meet the world as it is, rather than a rosy fairy-tale. Better for her to release that dream of perfection and learn choice rather than prejudice. She saw to it that there were more children in the house and had revamped her idea of a too tender education that shuts out realism and keeps its girls' heads in the misty clouds.

Protecting the child can be carried to extremes.

Married Flirts

by MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

GYPSEY MORELL and TOM WEAVER are married the same day as LILA BROTHERING and DEREK BLISS. Lila expects to live in luxury, while Gypsy intends to go on with her job, teaching in a settlement school. After returning from her honeymoon in Europe Lila invites the Weavers to dinner. Among the guests is wealthy MARKO BROUGHTON, who once asked Gypsy to marry him. He showers her with attentions which she accepts because she is jealous of Tom's interest in LILA BLANCHARD. After the party Tom and Gypsy quarrel, but peace is later restored. Shopping for Christmas, Gypsy meets Broughton who offers her a job cataloguing his library and gives her an advance payment of $50. Gypsy decides not to tell Tom about this. She uses the money to buy his Christmas gift, a watch. Gypsy, working in Broughton's library on a Saturday, has just finished for the day when she hears someone arrive and recognizes Lila's voice. Gypsy manages to escape unseen.

CHAPTER XVI

The narrowness of her escape left Gypsy with a shaken feeling. She longed with all her heart to be finished with the work at Marko's so that she should not at longer lay herself open to the danger of being misunderstood. There was no reason on earth why she should not say now, to Lila or anyone, quite simply and openly: "I'm doing some work at Marko's place." Not the least in the world. Only—well, she couldn't. She hadn't told Tom before and it was too late now. He wouldn't understand. "But you say you started just before Christmas. Why... Why...?"

She wrote a note to Marko, telling him her last visit would be on the second Saturday in February. She sealed and stamped it with a distinct feeling of relief. After this, she promised herself so solemnly, no more deceptions—not even tiny ones. It made her too uncomfortable to realize that she was doing something she didn't want her young husband to know about.

It was a bitter winter. Gypsy shivered at night when she plunged homeward through the darkness. She slipped along on icy pavements, hating the gray slush frozen in the gutters, the bitter wind that slashed at her skirts. Often and often she encountered gay groups of young people spilling out of apartment house doorways, on pleasure bound.

Young women in white fur wraps with their slim ankles rising out of expensive slippers. Youths in evening clothes. She and Tom weren't partying much just then. "Oh, I hate being poor!" Gypsy burst out rebelliously one night when they had spent the better part of the evening going over the accounts together. She was sorry the moment the words were out, for Tom was uncommonly sensitive on the subject. With dignity he shut the check-book and put the bills away.

"I'm sorry, Tommy, I didn't mean that."

"Oh, yes, you did." His tone was quiet but she knew just how deeply she had hurt him.

"It all comes down to this," Tom said, white-faced. "We ought not to have married."

She wouldn't have that. He was not to say it—ever! She won a smile again to his face with kisses but the cut had gone deep. Tom began to be feverish about his work in the office. He had to get ahead, he simply had to!

One particularly blizzard night the telephone rang and Tom answered it. His polite, "How are you? We're both splendid" left Gypsy guessing. "It's for you," he said, turning the instrument over to her.

Lila spoke. "Gypsy, darling, the most marvellous idea! Could you get away from the school for two weeks?"

Gypsy braced herself to refuse whatever dazzling invitation followed. Lila was used to having her own way. She hated being balked.

But could Gypsy go south with her? As her guest? Marko was taking some people on his yacht, Florida.

Gypsy's heart gave one wild leap. To get away from this freezing city—with its icy pavements and shrill winds blowing up from the river—would be heaven. But she checked herself in time. Lila was sweet to think of her, she said, but she couldn't get away. She would not say she couldn't afford the clothes—the inevitable extras.

Lila coaxed, argued. But Gypsy was firm. Thanks very much, she said. Some other time.

"What was that all about?" Tom glanced at her curiously.

She forced a laugh, but even to her own ears it sounded foolish and strained. "Lila's crazy," she said. "Wanting me to go south."

"Lord, I wish you could. Just what you need. Maybe we could..."

She laid her fingers on his lips. "Thanks, darling, but I don't want to. D'you think I'd leave you?"

He had to be satisfied with that. But he was to refer to it again and again in the days to come, when Gypsy dropped and dragged herself around. She didn't know, she said, what was the matter with her.

She lost her appetite. She was always tired. Her childish colour ebbed and her eyes lost their bright luster.

"Darned shame you couldn't have had that Florida trip," Tom grumbled one night, when she had let Dinah carry her plate back to the kitchen virtually untouched.

Gypsy sipped her coffee languidly. "Don't be silly," she said. She had never told Tom that Marko figured in the Florida plan. To-morrow was her last day with the books at the Broughton library.

She would go to him. Marko would have her final check waiting. She would end the association once and for all.

But on Saturday she woke with a bad cold. She was feverish. Her throat was sore. Going out was simply not to be thought of. Tom said, and she agreed with him. She stayed in bed, sorry she felt too genuinely ill to enjoy the unwanted luxury. Tom brought her hot tea, ineptly-made toast, and the morning paper and left with fond anxiety. Gypsy dozed and awakened through the long morning. Stupid of her to be ill on this particular day! What had she meant to do—oh, yes, she had Marko's books to finish off. She remembered, but it was like part of a bad dream, all of a piece with a bad taste in her mouth and her dull, persistent headache. At 12 o'clock she got uncertainly out of bed, the rosy wool robe wrapped around her and staggered to the telephone. She called Marko's office number and sat, drumming her fingers impatiently on the table, waiting.

After a long wait the operator put her through to Marko's private wire. She explained. Marko, propitiously, answered. He was sorry, she wasn't feeling well.

She turned away from the telephone, relieved at having the matter for the moment settled. What, then, was her surprise to see Tom in the doorway, watching her. He had the cool, withdrawn expression she dreaded. Tom had heard her!

"I was just..." She began haltingly to explain but he stopped her.

"Yes, I heard you." His face was stony. Gypsy looked at him miserably. Her palms were wet, her throat dry. What was there to say? If Tom believed the worst, it was perhaps what she deserved. She was too ill, too miserable to care really what happened to her.

She stumbled past him without another word and collapsed into bed. Tom followed her, putting one of his cool firm hands on her forehead.

"Temperature," he announced coldly. "I'm going to call the doctor."

Gypsy kept her eyes closed. She did not protest. Tom, she reminded herself, didn't love her any more—wouldn't, at least, when he'd discovered all her foolish deceptions.

Huddled under the blankets, aching and wretched, she heard the doctor arrive; heard his heavy voice booming in the living room and Tom's polite replies. This was a new doctor—a man who had an office in the first floor of the apartment building. Gypsy shrank from him. He wouldn't be in the least like old Doctor Bannerman who was just like one of the family.

This man was tall and dark and sure of himself. He put a professional finger on the patient's pulse, letting his shrewd eyes roam around the little room.

"Been feeling run down?"

She nodded. He asked another question... and another. Gypsy's heart quickened its beat. What was the man trying to tell her? He was saying something coolly and assuredly, scribbling on a prescription blank the while.

"Yes, my dear young lady, you're going to have a baby. Touch of flu you've got right now. That husband of yours will have to see you take good care of yourself. Keep warm... lots of fluids... medicine every three hours..."

Her first impulse was to laugh hysterically. The man must be mad! Then she considered. She'd been feeling decidedly queer lately. Cigarette smoke bothered her, and the smell of food cooking... other things. Only she'd been so rushed, so anxious about many things, she hadn't really stopped to think.

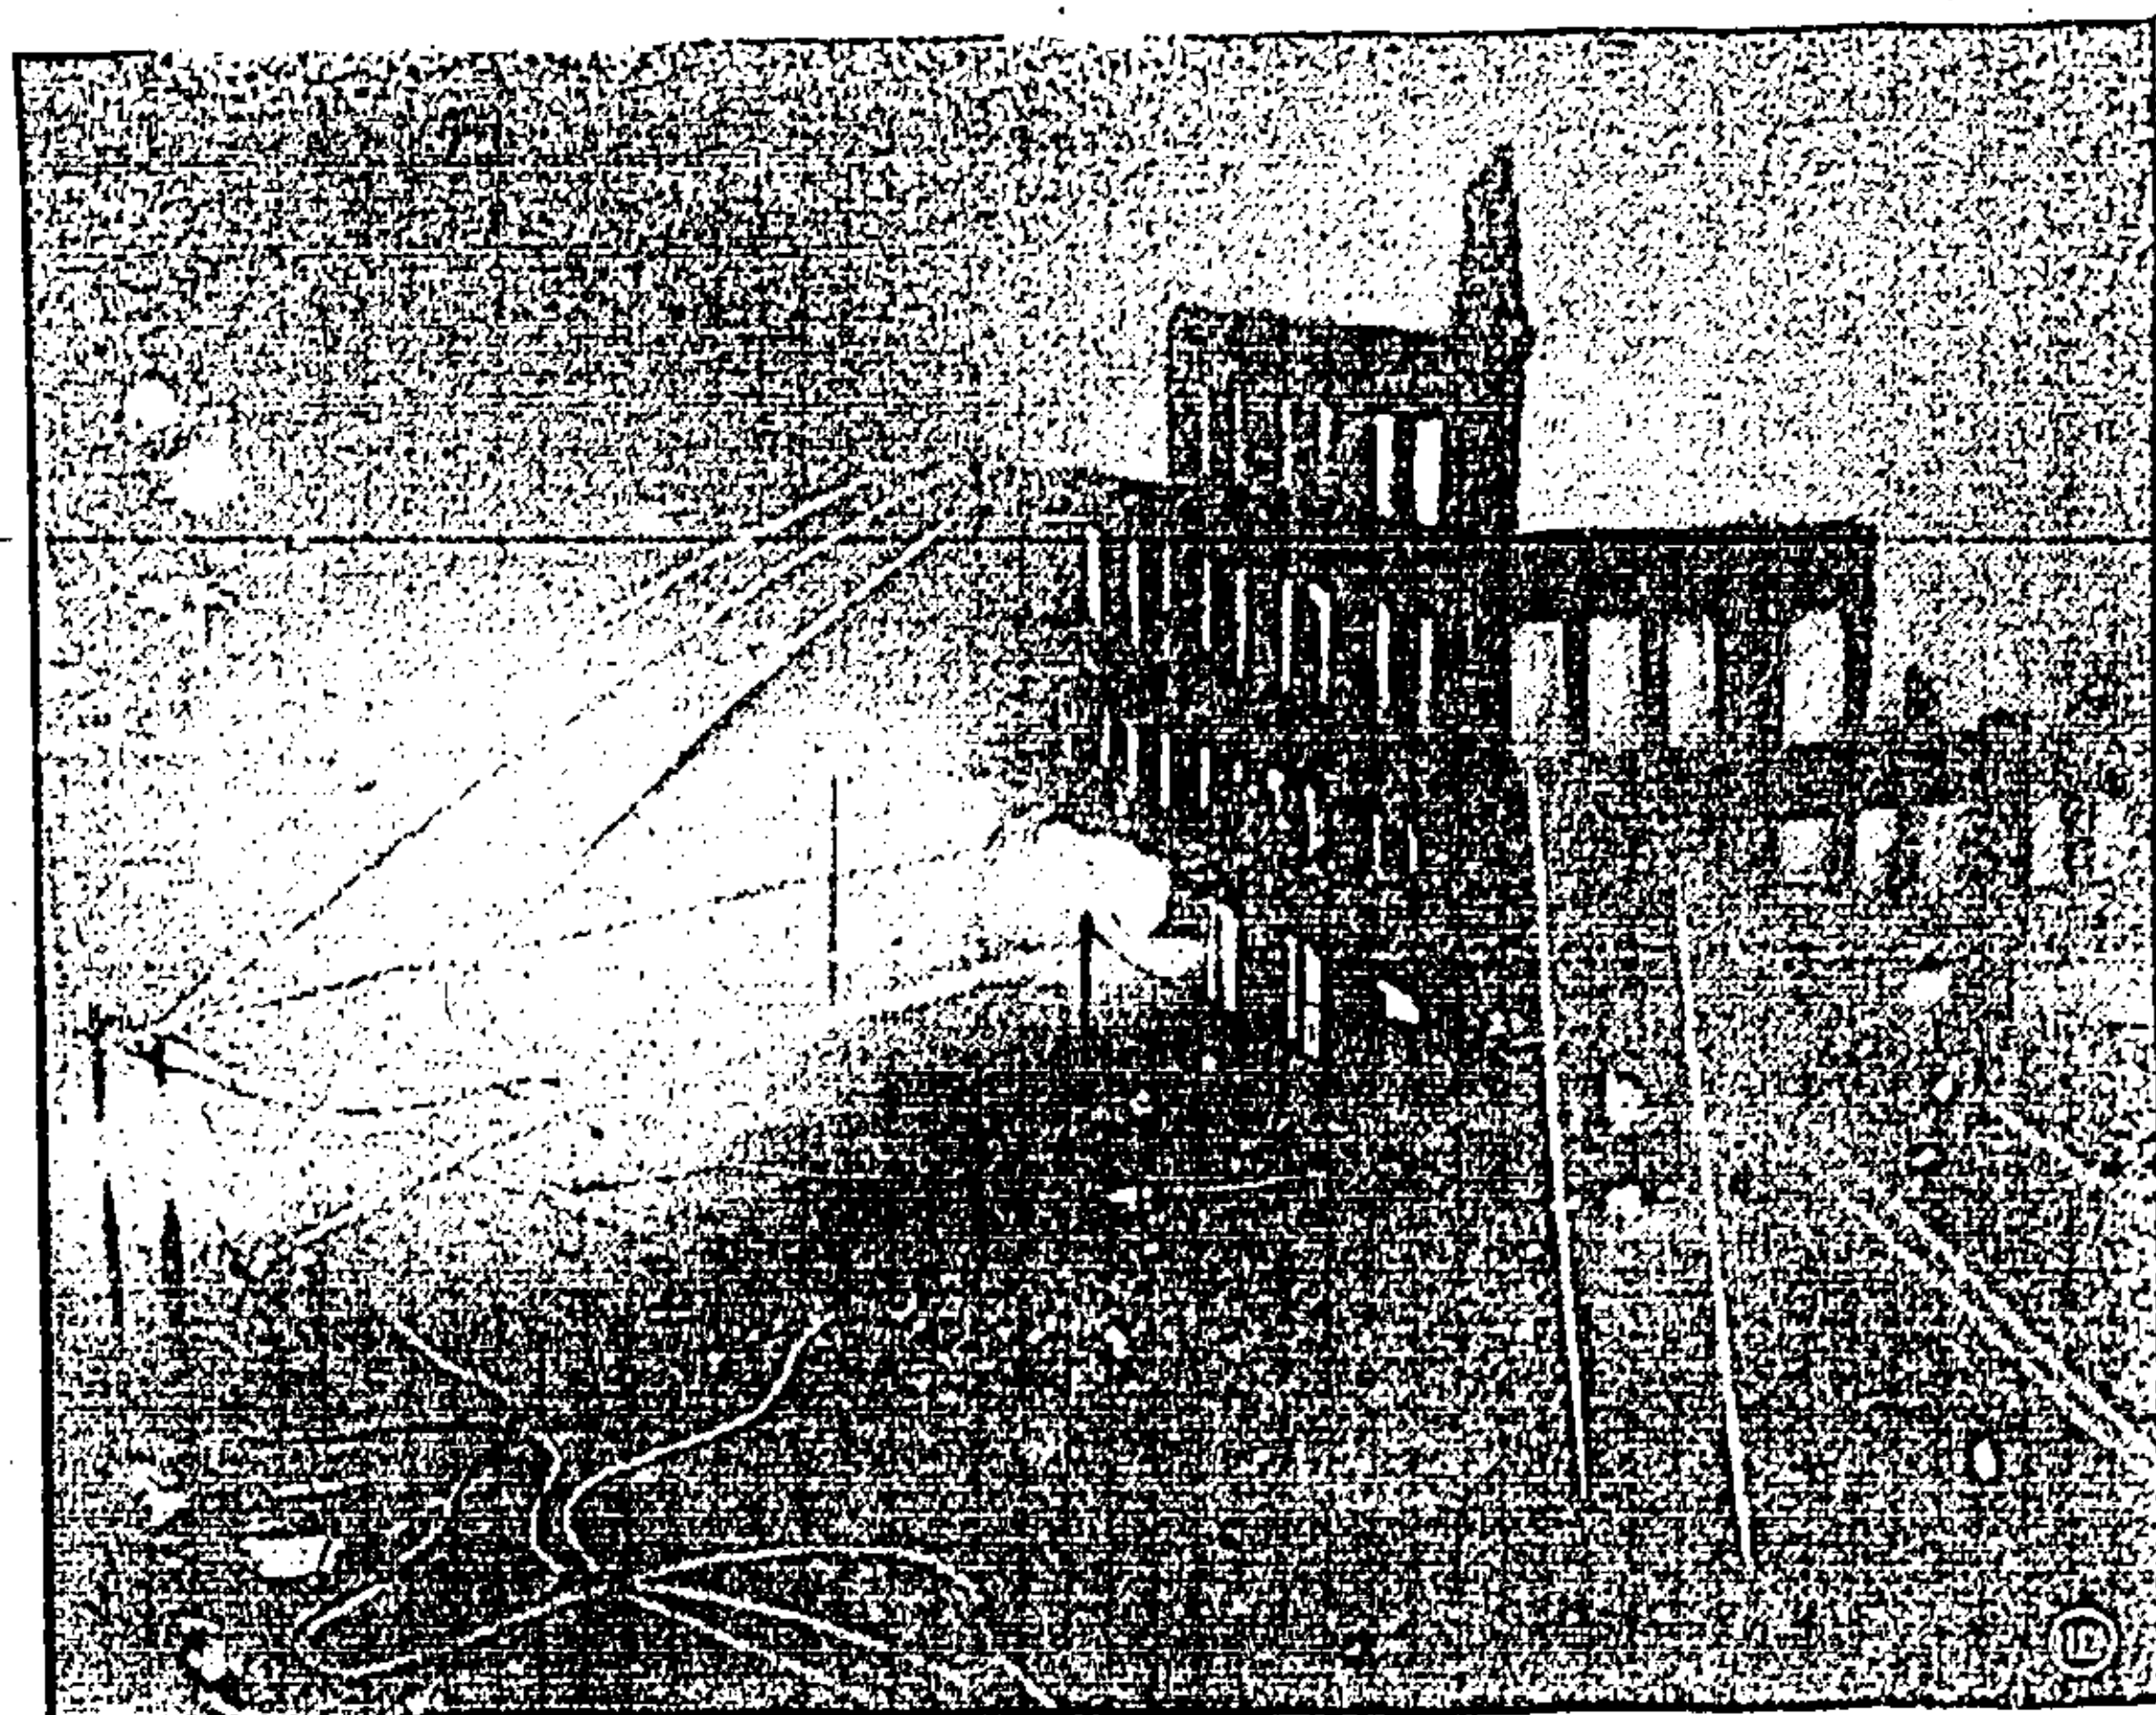

Tom knocked and the doctor bade him enter.

"Well, it seems you're to be congratulated." What a fatuous smile the man had, thought Gypsy, disliking him. He thought Tom was Walls of this building, five blocks from Cleveland's Public Square, crashed a few moments after this night picture was taken, imperiling the lives of firemen as they directed streams of water on the blaze. Loss was estimated at $200,000.

Gasoline poured into a heated stove was the cause of the $500,000 blaze that swept the Schenley-owned distillery near Lexington, Ky., causing the death of a watchman and the destruction of 20,000 barrels of whiskey, some of it 21 years old. This was the scene as the flames consumed a remaining pyramid of barrels.

Mr. Henry Mapp, chief of staff, who is expected to be nominated as chief of the Salvation Army as the present leader, General Higgins, intends to withdraw in the Autumn owing to delicate health.

When 111 ships of naval manœuvres, it was said, is shown in this scene the Panama Canal in the record time of 48 hours en route to Atlantic led the great procession. The Lexington, her deck rails lined with the ship's crew, is the foreground mark quarters of Army troops, the Canal during the fleet's transition.

Science now knows that it is the loss of Biocel from the skin which makes women look wrinkled and old. Once this vital element is restored to the tissues, the skin takes on new youthful beauty. True Biocel has been obtained from young animals and is now contained in Creme Total Skin Food. Rose Colour, according to the special formula of Prof. Dr. Stojkal. By its use, an aged, faded skin can quickly be rejuvenated, wrinkles disappear and sagging facial muscles be toned up and tightened. Use Creme Total Skin Food! Rose Colour at night. LESSON SERMON.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, HONGKONG

"Ancient and Modern Necromancy, Alms Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, yesterday.

The Golden Text was: "Oh let the wickedness of the wicked come to an end; but establish the just: for the righteous God trieth the hearts and reins" (Psalms 7:9).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto all the congregation of the children of Israel, and say unto them, Ye shall be holy: for I the Lord your God am holy. And ye shall not swear by my name falsely, neither shall thou profane the name of thy God: I am the Lord. . . . Regard not them that have familiar spirits, neither seek after wizards, to be defiled by them: I am the Lord your God" (Leviticus 19: 1, 2, 12, 31).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Divine Mind rightly demands man's entire obedience, affection, and strength. No reservation is made for any lesser loyalty. Obedience to Truth gives man power and strength. Submission to error superinduces loss of power" (p.183).

It takes a cleanup to put a son up in the world.

LOCAL WEDDINGS

WEEK-END CEREMONIES IN COLONY

The wedding took place yesterday afternoon at St. Theresa's Church, Kowloon Tong, of Miss Billy Field, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Field, to Mr. Miguel de Sousa of Kowloon Tong.

Both the bride and bridegroom are well-known in the Colony the latter being the conductor of "Mickey's Melody Makers" jazz orchestra, which has frequently delighted listeners over ZBW.

The bride wore a "Bunice" gown of Tea Rose liberty satin and gupure lace of the same shade, with an unusually long dovel-tail train and a bridal veil of silk tulle, beautifully embroidered, held by clusters of lustrous finished orange blossoms. The whole presented a most lavish and exquisite appearance.

A reception was at Savarin House held after the ceremony. Miss Stella Sprinkle and Mr. Vicente De Souza.

Green and Ivory white was the colour scheme at the marriage of Stella Jean Sprinkle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Sprinkle, and Vicente Ferrer Maria de Souza, son of Mr. R. M. de Souza, which was celebrated at St. Margaret's Church yesterday afternoon. The Rev. Father Page officiated at the ceremony while appropriate music was rendered on the organ by Mrs. A. M. de Souza.

The bride, who was given away by Mr. A. M. de Souza, chose a satin for her bridal gown, while her bridesmaid, Miss Edna Louisa Sprinkle, wore green organdie.

Messrs. Antonio Maria de Souza and Arthur Maria de Souza undertook the duties of best men.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at Mr. A. M. de Souza's home and later the happy couple left for their honeymoon which is being spent in Canton. For her going-away dress, the bride chose blue crepe-de-chine.

Well-known, Chinese Couple

A pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday afternoon at the Hop Yat Church, Bonham Road, when Miss Lau Mo-wan became the wife of Mr. Wong Ka-tung, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wong Ying-kut. The Rev. Cheung Cheuk-ling officiated at the ceremony.

The bride, who was given away by her father, Mr. Lau Sul, of the Kelly Knitting Factory, chose a white lace and satin gown set off with a white embroidered tulle veil and crown of orange blossom. She carried a "wheat" of white gladioli and maiden-hair fern.

Her only bridesmaid, Miss Chew Yuk-tsun, wore a cream tulle and georgette gown and carried a sheaf of pink gladioli. The duties of best man were undertaken by Mr. Willie Ng.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the To To Shin Restaurant and later, the happy couple left for their honeymoon, the bride wearing Chinese ceremonial dress for her departure.

Director of Messrs. Sincere Co

A pretty wedding was celebrated at the Union Church, Kennedy Road, on Friday when Miss Margaret Fan, niece of Mr. Fung Heung-chuen, a well-known local merchant, was married to Mr. Ronald Ma (Ma Wing-hon), son of Mr. Ma Moon-hew, a director of the Sincere Company, Ltd.

The Rev. E. G. Powell officiated and the bride was attended by the Misses Rose and Eve Lee as bridesmaids. The duties of best man were performed by Mr. Mo Wal-kwong, while Mr. Ma Yung-wai acted as groomsmen.

After the ceremony, a reception

Great Effort By Crawford And McGrath

What appeared to be a winning lob was smashed back by Von Cramm, and from that point Crawford seemed to lose interest in the match and eventually lost in the fifth set.

Von Cramm, who has shown steady improvement since his return to the international tennis courts during recent months, thoroughly deserved such a brilliant success. He seized his chances and made splendid recoveries at vital moments. He is certain to figure largely in the Wimbledon championships and his presence in the German Davis Cup team must improve that country's prospects.

The complete list of winners in the French championships follow:

Men's Singles:—Baron Von Cramm (Germany); Women's Singles:—Miss Margaret Scriven (England); Men's Doubles:—J. Borotra and J. Brugnon (France); Women's Doubles:—Miss E. Ryan (U.S.A.) and Miss M. Mathieu (France); Mixed Doubles:—J. Borotra and Miss Rosambert (France).

The final results as cable by Reuter were:

MEN'S SINGLES.

After 25 minutes Taylor, the Tottenham goalkeeper, was struck in the face from a shot by Birkett and he had hardly recovered before Green, who is Arsenal's top scorer this season, began the scoring. Green obtained a second goal just before the interval, and in the second half Birkett and Cox ended capital dribbles by scoring further goals.

Compton and Trim played a sound game at full-back for the Arsenal.

Shanghai Repays Enterprise Of Marcus Show In Bringing "Big Time" Troupe To Orient

Visit Recalls Hit Made By Julian Eltinge Here 15 Years Ago: "Old China Hand" Congratulates Charlie Hugo For Undertaking Project

THINKING back over the last 15 years, memory brings up only one show which in any way approached the Greater Marcus Show which has kept the Carlton packed for the last two weeks. This troupe was that headed by Julian Eltinge, famous American female impersonator who started life, as we recall it, on a ranch as a cowhand. A cowboy, let it be said, who was an ace in the theatrical profession, one in which he rose to become an outstanding member round about two decades ago.

Julian Eltinge was the star of his own show, but he brought along several solo artists as well, a chorus of comely and shapely lassies and four homeside musicians who were red hot with the type of jazz which came in during the years immediately following the Great War. Eltinge and his company played Shanghai, then Tientsin and Peking, returned here for another, a second engagement prior to going South and all in all, set these Chin cities on their ears with what was the gayest stage show, American or of other nationality, ever brought to this country.

Outstanding Shows. Other outstanding musical shows presented here in the last two decades include, if we remember rightly, a South African company headed by Laura Guerite, long a local favorite and still one of the sprightliest entertainers ever to favor Shanghai. The Carlton Theatre, opened in 1923 or thereabouts with "Wentworth," brother of Charlie Hugo (director of the Marcus tour), as manager, likewise was the temporary home of another British company whose star, was a little brunette whose name we forget, but whom we remember as a gal who sure could dance.

Oldtimers, too, will recall the Salisbury musical comedy companies who visited Shanghai both before and after the War, but whose tours in later years did not come East beyond India due to exchange, transportation costs and other difficulties which have kept good shows out of Shanghai for years. Then too, Old China Hands will remember the fine dramatic companies of from 10 to 20 players who at intervals brightened life here with their presentations at the old Lyceum Theatre on Museum Road, the home of the smooth and efficient operation of the scenery.

This type of organization is something new to Shanghai, and its newness makes it just that much more welcome here. It is several hundred per cent above any standard which earlier professional companies have set in this city, and the promise of Mr. A. B. Marcus that he will be back again with a bigger and better troupe would seem to us another reason for being mighty glad we're here because we're here. To Messrs. Marcus and Hugo we extend, in behalf of this city and particularly the American community, sincerest thanks for coming with such a marvellous show, best wishes for the continued success of their tour and every assurance of a hearty welcome and whole-hearted support upon their return to these shores.—M.E.

Amateur Dramatic Club, Shanghai's grand old standby.

Marcus Shines Alone

None of these companies, however, approach the Greater Marcus Show. In numbers alone, this troupe doubles and almost triples the shows which have invaded Shanghai—circuses, of course, excepted. It makes one feel pretty good to realize that Shanghai not only can, but will accept making it worth the while of this Greater Marcus Show to stop over in town for three and possibly more weeks. After all, Shanghai in terms of population is the fifth city of the world and should be glad to bear the expense of bringing out a company of 70, man of the Orient, the thanks of the community must go. His vision and acumen were such that he was able to secure the Marcus Show for an Oriental tour which, happily, seems likely to be extended into a globe-girdling trip. Charlie's keen business sense (not to mention his pocketbook) has brought to Shanghai a company of 70, which includes an executive and stage staff of 10, some two dozen principals and specialty stars, as many more pulchritudinous chorines who make up not one, but two choruses, and a handful of homeside musicians.

Y. W. C. A. CONCERT.

EXCELLENT ENTERTAINMENT AT ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

Delightful entertainment was provided to a large audience at the concert given by the Y.W.C.A. International Service Centre at St. Stephen's Girls' College on Saturday evening.

The programme was a varied one, including Chinese historical scenes, Chinese boxing and street scenes, humorous sketches and violin solos.

The Chinese historical scenes were presented by the students of Fairless Girls' School under the direction of the Head Mistress, Mrs. Cheung Wing-kui. The execution was admirable, and the costumes worn gave a very vivid effect. The students of King's College appeared in an exhibition of Chinese boxing and street scenes. Mr. John Braga, accompanied by Miss Braga at the piano, gave a pleasing selection of violin solos, which came in for a great deal of applause.

Miss Evelyn Gray and her friends were seen in a number of humorous sketches, which were cleverly carried out and thoroughly appreciated. Miss Beatrice Bichino as Professor Glockenspiel, and Miss Gray as Maggie, caused much amusement.

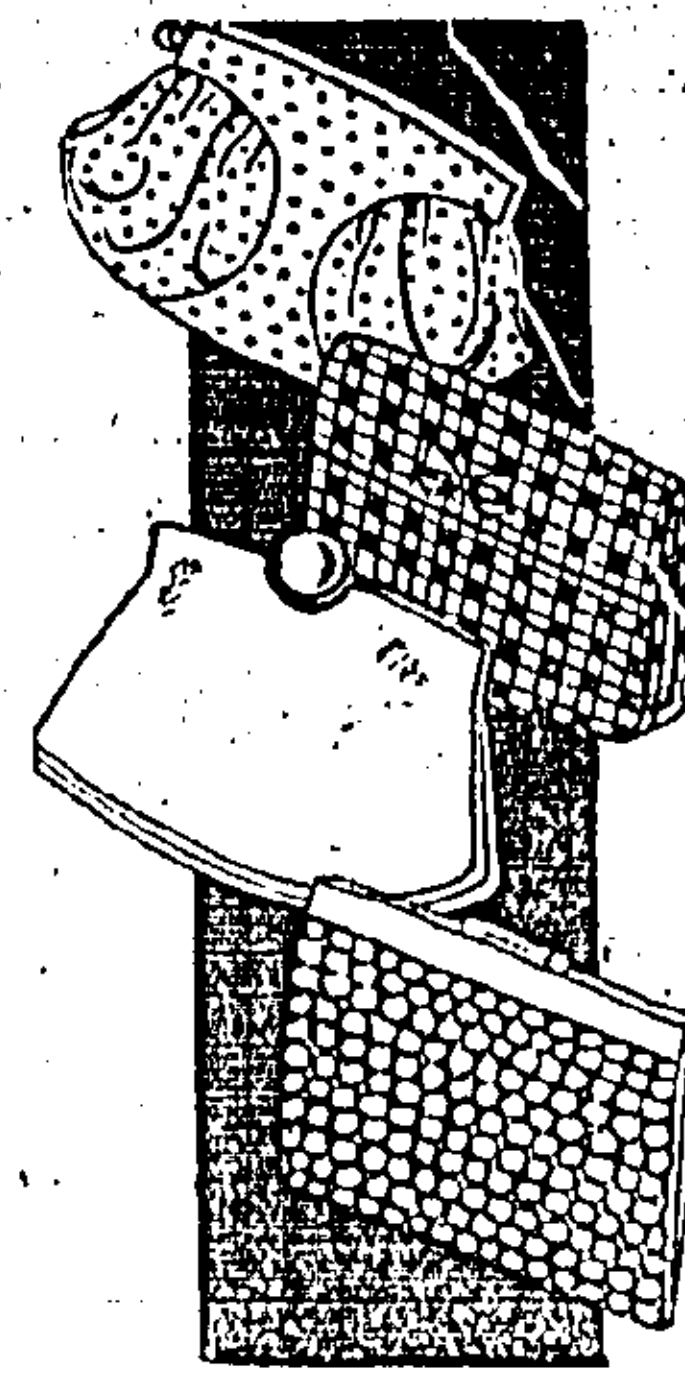

An appeal for assistance for the Society was made by Mrs. D. Forster, a member of the Committee of the Y.W.C.A. International Service Centre, during the interval.

Mrs. Forster said: "With the penetration of women into all branches of labour, into shops, offices, hospitals, and schools in recent years, the Y.W.C.A. has extended its interest and activities in the development of a centre for girls and women working in town and for girls living in, or passing through the Colony, who might need help and advice in matter of employment, vocation, or accommodation, or assistance of any sort."

"The economic depression in particular had hastened the necessity for development along these lines, and, in order to bring the work into a position central for both employed and unemployed, a room had been taken in the National and Commercial Bank Building, and it is now operating as the Y.W.C.A. International Centre."

MONDAY, JUNE 4, 1934.

THE KING

Britons will foregather in many parts of the globe to-day to celebrate the birthday of the King-Emperor, who attained his 69th year yesterday. It can be said with truth that there is to-day no more popular monarch in the world than Britain's King. A tremendous respect for the British Throne has always been felt in other lands, no less than throughout the length and breadth of the Empire, and this has been immensely strengthened by the shrewd sense and characteristic tact of the present monarch. In days when other nations are turning to dictatorships, the people of Britain and of the possessions overseas repose an unshaken confidence and trust in the wise counsellorship of their King, who, standing aloof from political issues, nevertheless wields an immense influence for good in the affairs of the nation and the Empire. A feature of His Majesty's life most worthy of note is the simplicity which runs through it, manifesting itself especially in his home life, wherein he has ever set a magnificent example to his people. The influence of a pure and stable family life cannot be over-estimated, and in this connection Britons everywhere can look with pride on the fact that King George and his gracious consort are never happier than when they are surrounded by members of their family. The love and regard which Britons the world over feel for their King was strongly demonstrated a few years ago when His Majesty was laid low with a serious illness, from the effects of which he has happily now recovered. In the years which have since passed, that love and regard have, if possible, deepened further still. A heartfelt prayer therefore goes up to-day that His Majesty may be spared to his people for many more years to continue the beneficent influences of his reign, and, by his precepts and guidance, to serve as an instrument in welding the various units of the Empire into even closer unity and strength. Hongkong, though one of the lesser Colonies, is proud of the link which binds her to the Empire and the Throne, and is to-day happy to register afresh her loyalty to the person of the King and all that he stands for in the affairs of the great British Commonwealth of Nations.

NOTES OF THE DAY

LOCAL HONOURS

So far as Hongkong is concerned, the King's Birthday Honours List contains no surprises. It is practically confined to recognition of long service, awarded on the retirement of the recipients. Mr. R. Baker, who receives the O.B.E., is remembered for his lengthy association with the Kowloon-Canton Railway. As a young engineer he played a part in the construction of the line, and had the distinction of rising to the position of manager before ill-health recently compelled him to retire. A keen and ardent worker in the Boy Scout movement, not only in Hongkong but in England before coming East many years ago, the Rev. G. T. Waldegrave is given an M.B.E. He has also done splendid work amongst the men of the mercantile marine in connection with the Missions to Seamen, and when he leaves the Colony in August he will carry with him the best wishes of all who have been associated with him in these movements, and in charitable work in the Colony. Mr. A. R. Sutherland gets the I.S.O. decoration for years of conscientious work in the Education Department, while C.S.M. Padgett, of the H.K.V.D.C., is deservedly remembered with the M.B.E. for his keen and active interest in volunteering.

JAPAN'S POLICY

From time to time Japan's policy of dominance in the Far East has been likened to the American Monroe Doctrine. When this favourite parallel of Japanese spokesmen was suggested to Mr. Uchiro Yokoyama on the occasion of his recent interview in Geneva, he both adopted it and conceded its falsity. "For the general newspaper reader," he is quoted as saying, "I suppose it is just as well to explain this as an Asiatic Monroe Doctrine. But, naturally, between us, we know that the Monroe Doctrine is not comparable." Actually the general public should strive to understand the differences which the diplomatist recognises between Japanese policy toward eastern Asia and the traditional attitude of the United States toward the American continents.

GLIB PHRASE

The present Japanese attitude is more like the pseudo-Monroe Doctrine which grew up in the United States by popular interpretation—or rather misinterpretation—at the "turn of the century." It bred the jingoism which coined the glib phrase, "America for Americans," and went on to spread imperialism under that cloak. Two decades of redirection and distortion were required to return the doctrine to its true meaning. Americans may take a more comprehending and patient view of existing Japanese feelings if they remember their own aberration of the nineties. Then the doctrine sometimes was mistaken for a declaration of hegemony over the Latin-American states, justifying expansion at their expense, even as some Japanese evidently entertain grandiose ideas of their "manifest destiny" in the Orient.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE

That never was the real Monroe Doctrine, however, nor an official interpretation of it. Even President Theodore Roosevelt, who stretched it worst, denied that it carried an implication of protectorate over Caribbean countries. In 1916, President Wilson made the declaration at Mobile, lately reaffirmed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, that the United States "would never again seek one additional foot of territory by conquest." And during the Hoover Administration the Clark memorandum repudiated the supposed corollary that in case of financial or other difficulties in weak Latin-American countries the Monroe Doctrine required intervention by the United States.

SPECIOUS ALLUSION

If the United States has taken such care in recent years to shear off unwarranted implications of the Monroe Doctrine as a defensive instrument in its application to neighbours on her own and the adjoining continent, how much less reason there is to suppose she should be impressed or restricted in any peaceful action by a specious allusion to an American policy. The present technical activities in China of the League of Nations are far removed from any attempt by western nations to extend their political system or sovereignty to China. For this reason the principle of the Monroe Doctrine actually—as Mr. Yokoyama says—has no application when cited by Japan to explain her interest in China and the continent of Asia.

THE POLITICS OF CANTON

By A SHANGHAI SUBSCRIBER

WILL you be good enough to allow a subscribing reader of your journal a little space in your columns for a frank expression of opinion, upon the views of Southern political leaders on Sino-Japanese direct negotiations, reported a few days ago.

I assume that the account reflects the present attitude of Southern statesmen (I will not refer to them as politicians—yet) with substantial fidelity. It is gratifying to note that Mr. Hsiao Fu-Chen flatly gave the lie to rumours concerning the enlargement of the South West Political Council, and the formation of a secessionist government there. The Government leaders at Nanking have learnt to be thankful for small mercies from the Southern critics, and, no doubt, feel duly gratified to Mr. Hsiao for such announcement.

However, as a plain, humble citizen, I would register strong protest against the worthy gentleman's practice of building with one hand and simultaneously pulling down with the other. Even the purblind must be able to see—which, apparently Mr. Hsiao does not—that he is contradicting himself in one and the same brief statement by adding:

"The South-West authorities will maintain the present political status."

Which, we are sorry to have to admit, amounts to something more than mere local autonomy in the South.

Then he goes on to say:—
"Having Kwangsi as our staunch ally we are adhering to the three main policies of overthrowing the dictatorship, suppression of the Communists and recovery of invaded territories."
Having set his house in order, General Wang Chia Lieh, Chairman of the Kweichow Provincial Government, has definitely cast in his lot with the man, of Yunnan Provincial Government, also supports the South-West. Owing to special circumstances General Ho Chien, Chairman of the Hunan Provincial Government, is unable to make known his stand. I am happy to say that certain provinces (in the north) are ready to co-operate with us."

LIP SERVICE

All this verbiage, if it means anything at all, means that Mr. Hsiao is definitely working for an alignment of the Southern provinces against our National Government at Nanking, and that whatever loyalty, if any, he and his fellows profess for the established government of our Republic, that loyalty does not extend beyond lip service. How else is one to interpret the above quoted words, but to conclude that phrases like "our staunch ally," "cast in his lot with us" connote that the speaker is in active opposition to some body?

"I think you are just saying that you like it."

The Very Idea!

SAD TALE OF MUGGLESTONE-SMITH

By George

MUGGLESTONE was his middle name. He called himself Mugglestone-Smith and came here with a great reputation as a bridge player.

Since the tragic scenes enacted in the club room Mugglestone-Smith cannot be found, and a report is expected daily that "a body as yet unidentified was found floating in the Harbour last night."

As far as we are concerned, the ghostly remains of Mugglestone-Smith will remain as unknown as the identity of the founder of his reputation as a bridge player.

It was really Rooster's fault from the beginning.

Robinson had failed to turn up to make the quartette and the Rooster, noising round the billiard room had picked up Smith detailing his experiences in big game hunting at Whipsnade. While Rooster was being introduced the audience melted away and Rooster thought his problem was solved.

"Care for a game of bridge, old man?" said Rooster whose forte is being half fellow well met to anybody who isn't.

Smith smiled smugly. Somehow it was the sort of thing one would have expected him to do and Rooster confessed afterwards that he felt the thrills of misgiving go trickling down his spine.

However, for better or for worse the die had been cast and a few minutes later Mr. Mugglestone-Smith was being introduced to us.

Stroker made a desperate attempt to avert the impending tragedy by halting our new acquaintance as Mugglestone-Smith but he took it without a squirm.

The doors were closed, the cards were cut and dealt. The Rooster faced Mugglestone-Smith and remembering the reputation his partner bore, allowed a faint smile to disfigure his face.

He said afterwards that he thought his partner was joking when Mugglestone-Smith inquired blandly what were trumps!

The shocked silence which followed was broken by Rooster who bid two hearts and went down heavily.

During the terrible remainder of that rubber the tension could be traced in the little beads of perspiration which trembled on the Rooster's brow.

When Mugglestone-Smith revoked for the first time a laughing apology almost carried it off but the third occasion following as it did on his failure to call the Rooster out of a conventional double, almost ended the happy little party on the spot.

By this time the room was crowded with breathless spectators, and we were all more or less unstrung.

Near the close of one of the most successful rubbers we had enjoyed with Stroker, we felt everything going round and Stroker, though slightly hysterical himself, called for water.

Mugglestone-Smith clinched the issue in the next hand by stubbornly refusing to return the Rooster's lead.

Behind us we could hear the betting on the next rubber as the Rooster, aged by ten years and tottering feebly on his pins, rose to swap seats with us. Mugglestone-Smith rose too.

Instinctively Stroker stood up. We paused with bowed heads. Mugglestone-Smith said: I want to leave the room, please.

Even then the fellow retained a touch of his old hauteur.

The spectators cleared a little path for him and Mugglestone-Smith passed through the wide open door.

We listened a long time for the shot, but none came.

Thinking that he might be without his gun we sent the No. 1 Boy to remedy the defect. He came back with a shamed face to report that Smith had shirked the issue and could not be found.

But we are confident ourselves that the report is only delayed. A man cannot play bridge like Smith and live.

LOCAL BIRTHDAY PARADE

COLOURFUL SCENES IN CITY

H.E. GOVERNOR TAKES SALUTE

Statue Square was the centre of a brilliant and impressive naval and military pageant this morning marking the 69th birthday of His Majesty King George V.

As in previous years, the ceremony took the form of a parade of naval and military units and march of the garrison past H.E. the Governor, Sir William Peel, K.C.M.G., K.B.E., who was positioned on the north side of the Cenotaph.

His Excellency arrived at 10 a.m. on the south side of the memorial and was met by H.E. the G.O.C., Major General O. C. Borrett, C.B., C.M.G., C.B.E., D.S.O., who was accompanied by Col. F. P. Newnorthy, D.S.O., M.C., and Lieut. F. R. L. Meares, A.D.C.; Commodore Frank Elliott, O.B.E., who was accompanied by Payr. Cmdr. F. R. Porter and Cmdr. D. Orr-Ewing; and Squadron Leader C. R. Kenry, R.A.F.

THE INSPECTION.

The Governor's arrival was heralded by the playing of the first part of the National Anthem by the Band of the 2nd Bn. East Lancashire Regiment, after which His Excellency inspected the two Guards of Honour, comprising two officers and 50 other ranks drawn from the 1st Bn. Lincolnshire Regiment, formed up in line on the south side of Chater Road facing north. Two officers from the East Lancashire Regiment carried the colours.

His Excellency then took up position on the pavement on the north side of the Cenotaph. A Royal Salute of 21 guns was then fired by the 5th Battery H.K.S.R.A., and at the conclusion of the 7th, 14th and 21st rounds a feu-de-joie was fired by the East Lancashire Regiment drawn up in Connaught Road.

CHEERS FOR THE KING.

Before the booming of the Battery guns and the rattle of feu-de-joie had died down, the Square rang with the voices of those present as three cheers were called for His Majesty. Then the strains of the National Anthem filled the air as the units on parade took the Royal Salute.

The ceremony concluded when H.E. the Governor took the salute as the garrison units marched past in column of route.

Units taking part in the ceremony were the Royal Navy, Royal Marines, 8th Heavy Brigade, R.A., Royal Engineers, Royal Signals, Lincolnshire Regiment, East Lancashire Regiment, South Wales Borderers, 1st Mountain Battery, H.K.S.R.A., 2nd, 4th and 5th.

Old Master Found After 130 Years

EXPERT'S STROKE OF LUCK

A picture which has been missing for 130 years has just been discovered in London after a long search by Dr. Borenius, the picture expert, of Sotheby's, and will be sold there during May.

An early and important work which Lorenzo Lotto painted over 400 years ago in honour of his patron, Cardinal Bernardino de Rossi, Archbishop of Treviso, it was sent to London at the beginning of the nineteenth century and then disappeared.

Dr. Borenius was examining a collection of pictures "in the heart of London" recently when, going down a dark corridor, he came across the famous painting for which he had been looking for 30 years.

The picture, an allegorical landscape, includes two shields, one of which bears the arms of the Rossi di San Secondo family.

One similar Lotto is in the possession of Lord Conway, and another is in the Louvre.

FOR THE KING ROYAL BLUE BUDGERIGARS

The result of generations of careful selection and breeding, two royal blue budgerigars, claimed to be the first yet produced anywhere in the world, have been presented through the Zoological Society of New South Wales and the Governor (Sir Philip Game) to the King.

The offer has just been accepted by cable, by the King who is a keen aviculturist and personally tends many of his birds.

The breeder of the birds, Mr. Harold E. Peir, is the owner of many champion budgerigars. The original colour of the species was green and yellow, but as a result of the application of the Mendelian law, breeders throughout the world have now succeeded in evolving about twenty different colour varieties, of which, at the moment, olive green appears to be the most popular.

Sir Philip Game told Austral News that he had been very cautious in asking the King if he desired the birds, but the cable of acceptance arrived quickly showing the King's keen interest.

GOLF PROFESSIONAL.

James Wallace Obtains A Post Near Croydon.

London, June 3. James Wallace of Troon, who was runner-up to H. Lawson Little, the American, in the recent British Amateur Golf Championship, is turning professional.

He has obtained a post with the Selsdon Park Club near Croydon.—Reuter Special.

(Wallace was one of the comparatively unknown golfers who created surprises in the recent championship. He played some marvellous golf during his passage to the final where he was beaten by a convincing margin by Lawson Little, losing, it will be recalled, by 14 and 13. Among his victims were H. Chandler Egan, Cyril Tolley, Jack McLean and G. T. Dunlop. It was against Dunlop, the American Amateur Champion, that Wallace played his best golf during the championship. He was a brilliant triumph, as he was fighting an up-hill battle all the way.)

Heavy Batteries, 1/8th Punjab Regiment, R.A.S.C., H.K. Mule Corps, Royal Air Force, H. K. Naval Volunteer Reserve and the Hongkong Volunteer Defence Corps, the Royal Merchant Navy, St. John Ambulance Association, the Boy Scouts and the Guards Association.

Following the Cenotaph ceremonial, the various units on parade marched through the city, large crowds thronging the route.

NOTABLES PRESENT.

Amongst those present at the ceremony were His Honour the Chief Justice, (Mr. A.D.A. MacGregor), members of the Consular Body, the Hon. Sir Thomas Southern, K.B.E., C.M.G., the Hon. Mr. N. L. Smith, the Hon. Mr. E. Taylor, the Hon. Mr. R. M. Henderson, the Hon. Sir Shouson Chow, Kt., LL.D., the Hon. Sir William Shenton, Kt., His Honour the Puisne Judge, (Mr. P. J. Jacobs), the Hon. Cmdr. CENTENARY CLIMAX

KING'S SON AT MELBOURNE'S SHRINE

According to present plans, November 11th, Armistice Day, will see the climax of the Centenary Celebrations at Melbourne at which the Duke of Gloucester will play the leading part.

At the first stroke of the eleventh hour, on that day, 30,000 ex-service men assembled near the southern steps of the magnificent and newly-finished Shrine of Remembrance will come to attention, says Austral News. In the Domain below, half a million citizens will reverently bow their heads.

A bugle will sound the end of the silence. The Duke will mount the steps and, to the triumphant accompaniment of a massed choir of 3,000 voices, will mount the steps and throw open for the first time the doors of the memorial before the shaft of sunlight which, through an Eye of Light falls on the Shrine of Remembrance only at the period of Armistice Silence each year, fades away.

Prominent in the ceremony of dedication will be the Union Jack, originally used on the Whitehall Cenotaph, which is being presented to the people of Victoria. The flag, at the conclusion of the ceremony, will be hoisted, on a special flagstaff.

The Duke of Gloucester will, it is expected, be asked to lay a stone commemorating the completion of the Memorial and its dedication in Victoria's centenary year.

Although no official communication has yet been received from the King's enquiry, the Shrine trustees expect that the Duke of Gloucester will bring with him to Melbourne the Royal Book of Remembrance which has been sent to Buckingham Palace for the King's signature and inscription. It is the first of 40 Books of Remembrance containing the names of the Victorian men and women who served in theatres of war. It will be placed by the Duke in a bronze casket in the Inner Shrine after the ceremony of dedication.

BUSIER SHIPYARDS

More Work in Hand and More Begun

The marked improvement in the shipbuilding industry is emphasised in the figures of Lloyd's Register for the first quarter of the year.

In Great Britain and Ireland there was an increase of 149,899 tons in the work in hand, as compared with the low figures for the previous quarter, and the total—381,440 tons—was 220,039 tons greater than the tonnage which was being built at the end of March, 1933.

At the end of March, 1934, the tonnage on which work was suspended amounted to 144,972 tons; about 139,000 tons of steamers and 6,000 tons of motorships. These figures included the new Cunard 73,000 ton steamer—No. 534—on which work has since been resumed.

In Great Britain and Ireland, 203,012 tons were commenced during the last three months, showing an increase of 128,311 tons over the corresponding total for the December quarter. About 99,000 tons—21 per cent. of the tonnage now being built in Great Britain—are intended for registration abroad or sale.

FRENCH AGRICULTURAL POLICY

Attempt To Return People To Land

From the position of being one of the leading agricultural countries in Europe, France within recent years has dropped behind, and this has caused much concern to those in charge of the nation's destiny.

For this set-back, a reason has been found in the gradual draining of the rural areas of its population, as work is sought in the towns and there is a tendency to desert the soil for what in these times of depression cannot easily be satisfied in industrial channels.

The position has been somewhat rectified, as regards rural and agricultural needs, by an influx of foreign farm labourers, whose total number in actual employment last year is given as over 62,000. The trend of modern economic ideas has reverted to the soil as the foundation of national prosperity; and in giving exceptional attention as she has now done to this problem, France does no more than help herself who is particularly favoured by Nature in this respect.

WAR DEBTS QUESTION

BRITISH PRESS VIEWS

London, June 2.

Within a few days, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, will make a full statement in the House of Commons on the British Government's attitude towards the War Debt question, which has acquired immediate interest owing to the fact that a further instalment of the British Debt to America falls due for payment on June 15.

A reminder that a new payment was due was contained in the United States Note of May 25. The Note also included the June and December instalments of last year (less the token amounts actually paid) and the instalment under the 1932 agreement for making good the Hoover Moratorium. The total exceeded $239,000,000, or at current exchange rates £47,000,000.

Meanwhile President Roosevelt's Message, which was delivered to Congress yesterday, is being carefully studied here and it is noted that there are some points in it which are in agreement with the British Government's views, particularly those in reference to the upsetting effect on trade of the debt question.

Mr. Roosevelt's reiteration of his readiness at all times to negotiate on the general position is also noted.

The terms of the message made it clear that the President has been actuated by the desire to give Congress the history of the subject up to date; but they did not contain any suggestion for fresh action, either by himself or by Congress.

Newspapers' Review.

Newspapers, in their review of the situation, regret that neither the arguments of the British Notes of December 1932, which on this side appeared irrefutable, nor the subsequent discussions seem to have had any effect upon American opinion; and that at the moment it seems impossible to reconcile the British and American views.

The Times notes that "on this side of the Atlantic there is a widespread conviction that, from the beginning the War Debt had not the same moral validity as an ordinary commercial transaction, and that such validity as it had was destroyed when, by the Lausanne Agreement, negotiated on the United States initiative, Britain abandoned her claims on War Debt and reparation payments due to her, that the endeavour to carry out the 1932 funding settlement—under which Britain has already paid $1,468,000,000—has been largely responsible for the collapse of the international financial system, the economic, social and political consequences of which have been felt all over the world, and not least in America, and that the endeavour, if renewed, will make it impossible for any revival of international trade; and, finally, that it is illogical for the United States to press her debtors for payment so long as her tariff and shipping policy makes it impossible for them to pay in goods and services for goods and services, which was the original basis of debt."

The Manchester Guardian, on the other hand, says the gap between the American and European points of view is still so wide that there seems little hope of gaining anything by keeping up the pressure any longer, and it asks, "Has not the time come when the only way to force a realistic settlement is to cease to pay?"

The Daily Telegraph, after noting Mr. Roosevelt's renewed offer of discussions, recalls that Britain has thrice endeavoured to negotiate a settlement.

Discussing the nature of the debt, it points out that it was not money that was "hired" but munitions and supplies, and that repayment was complicated fatally when the United States would not take back in goods what she had loaned in goods.

The Telegraph urges that time has come for the disclosure of the suggestions made by Sir Frederick Leith Ross at the last unfruitful discussion, and of the counter-proposals offered by the American State Department, in order that the public may know the width of the gap and whether it is bridgeable.—British Wireless.

GREAT EFFORT BY J. CRAWFORD AND V. MCGRATH

Borotra and Brugnon, this year's winners of the French men's doubles tennis championship.

TO WIN FRENCH DOUBLES TITLE

BEATEN IN THE FIFTH SET

PEGGY SCRIVEN DOES IT AGAIN

Paris, June 3. Miss Peggy Scriven, the Englishwoman tennis player, whose fluctuating form has bewildered the selectors and her friends, has done it again!

To-day, she retained the French singles title by defeating Miss Helen Jacobs, America's leading player, after a gruelling three set match by the scores of 7-5, 4-6, 6-1.

By this achievement, she enjoys the distinction of being one of a few competitors to retain a title. The men's singles and doubles and mixed doubles championships all changed hands, although Miss Elizabeth Ryan and Madame Mathieu retained the ladies doubles crown.

Miss Jacobs could not stand the pace against Miss Scriven. Forced to 22 games in the first two sets, of which the English girl won the first at 7-5, Miss Jacobs went to pieces in the third set, conceding it after capturing but one game.

Miss Jacobs also figured on the losing side when in company with Miss Sarah Paley, her Wightman Cup colleague, she was beaten in the women's doubles after a three set match.

The challengers won the opening set at 6-3, but Miss Ryan and Madame Mathieu came back strongly, and after levelling matters, ran out comfortable winners.

BRILLIANT DOUBLES MATCH. Jack Crawford and Vivian McGrath made a great effort to win the men's doubles, but after recovering from a two sets deficit, were finally beaten in the fifth set by Borotra and Brugnon, the J. Crawford and V. McGrath, who made an unsuccessful, although valiant effort to win the French men's doubles tennis title.

French Doubles Cup pair. The winners had to go all out to win the first set at the 20th game, but when they had also captured the next stanza to three, it looked like a straight sets win for them.

The Australians, however, fought back with renewed vigour. They captured the third set with little difficulty, and the fourth at the tenth game.

A terrific struggle for the fifth set saw games go with service, until the Frenchmen broke through, finally to win at the sixteenth.

It was a magnificent display of tennis, in which all four players figured prominently at intervals.

MORE FRENCH SUCCESS. Further French success was enjoyed in the mixed doubles, when Jean Borotra and Mlle. Rosambert easily beat Adrian Quist and Miss Ryan in straight sets.

An unaccountable and quite unusual lapse on the part of Jack Crawford cost him his singles title against Von Cramm. The Australian was leading 5-4 in the fourth set and had match point.

PADGHAM'S & COTTONS BRILLIANT GOLF

LOSER STEALS LIMELIGHT IN A THRILLING STRUGGLE

Southport, May 5.

Despite the gallant efforts of Henry Cotton, Alfred Padgham, the 27-year-old Ryder Cup and international player, now professional at Sandridge Park, won the first prize of £315 in the Dunlop tournament here by two strokes. His aggregate of 279 represents the finest performance in the history of British golf.

While according due praise to a very deserving winner, it must be admitted that Cotton stole most of the limelight in the final round.

Having recovered brilliantly from the terrible burden of that opening round of 78, Cotton started the last stage needing to equal his own record score of 66 to tie. With grim determination Cotton proceeded on his superhuman task and reached the turn in 35. Turning for home he had two great threes. Then at the 12th he pushed his drive out of bounds yet secured a four. Three followed at the 14th, where he noted from seven yards, and 15th, so that he stood on the 16th tee requiring a 4 3 to tie.

He reached the 10th green with two splendid wooden shots, but his approach putt, curling over a rise in the surface, finished two yards from the flag. When he missed the second putt his chances had gone.

Nevertheless, it was a glorious failure for to accomplish such a marvellous round in the circumstances spoke volumes for his spirit. We saw a new Cotton—a fighter, every inch of the way.

Although Alie Mitchell won an invitation competition at Long Ashton, Bristol, with a score of 271 and Percy Alliss carried off the Portcawl tournament in 1932 with 278, one considers these facts pale in comparison with Padgham's performance.

The Almsdale course stretches 6,800 yards and to go round it four times with an average of less than 70 strokes for each 15 holes a golf without parallel by a British player.

Padgham also holds the record for the Irish Open Championship, which he won at Cork two years ago with a score of 283. His four rounds here were models of consistency, the like of which has probably never previously been seen. With his beautiful rhythmic swing he struck the ball with power and precision and never made a serious mistake throughout.

LIKE A MACHINE.

During his final round Padgham revealed the right temperament by maintaining his robot-like accuracy before a huge gallery. He dropped strokes at the 6th, 6th and the 8th—all minor slips—and reached the turn in 38. Undismayed he started for home with a succession of three threes, holding three difficult putts. He was now on the winning path and when he holed a three-yrder for a two at the 15th he had the issue in safe keeping.

Some idea of Padgham's mechanical consistency can be gained from the fact that in each of the last three rounds he came home in 35. This morning during his round of 68 (which gave him a lead of five strokes at the end of the third round) he made golf look the simplest of games. His drives were so straight that he never experienced the slightest trouble, and he failed to reach the green with his second shot only twice. He had lapses on two greens, the first and seventh; otherwise he putted beautifully, including eight single putts.

LACEY'S MISTAKES.

Henry Cotton's morning round, too, was a wonderful effort, and had several putts gone down like they did on the previous day, instead of stopping on the lip of the hole, his score would have been phenomenal.

Lacey placed himself out of the running by missing short putts during the outward half. Then he became rattled and strokes slipped away rapidly. I gathered the impression early on that he hurried his shots so as not to hinder his partner, who happened to be his friend, Padgham.

WORLD SWIMMING RECORDS

Girl's Success At Dundee

London, May 7. Miss Willy Den Ouden, the 16-year-old Dutch girl swimmer, broke two world's records at the Dundee Central Baths on Saturday night.

She swam 220 yards in 2min. 27 3-sec. and 200 yards in 2min. 14 4-sec. Previous records were: 220 yds., Miss Helen Maddison (U.S.A.), 2min. 34 4-sec.; 200 yds., Miss S. Stewart (Dundee), 2min. 32-sec.

In a team swimming match at Cambridge the University beat the Shiverers, from Hove, by 32 points to 14, but the water polo match was drawn at 4 goals all.

Hongkong Cycling Club

YESTERDAY'S RAIN RUN: NEXT WINTER'S PROGRAMME

Though once again the objective of the Hongkong Cycling Club was not attained, the run to Fanling yesterday in continuous heavy rain was nevertheless immensely enjoyed by those hardriders who dared to defy the elements.

Under Mr. C. Read, (captain) the Club departed from the Ferry at 9.20 a.m. and despite an increase in the number of minor delays, Fanling was reached before 11 a.m. at which time the downpour increased in intensity and caused a halt at the Hunters Arms.

Refreshments and a chat further delayed the party and it was not until 12.40 p.m. that the journey was resumed, still in the rain. As the latter showed no sign of abatement, the extension to Shatinok was abandoned in favour of a "spring" for home which resulted in Shamshuipo being reached at 2 p.m. by a saturated but extremely merry band of wheelers.

WINTER PROGRAMME.

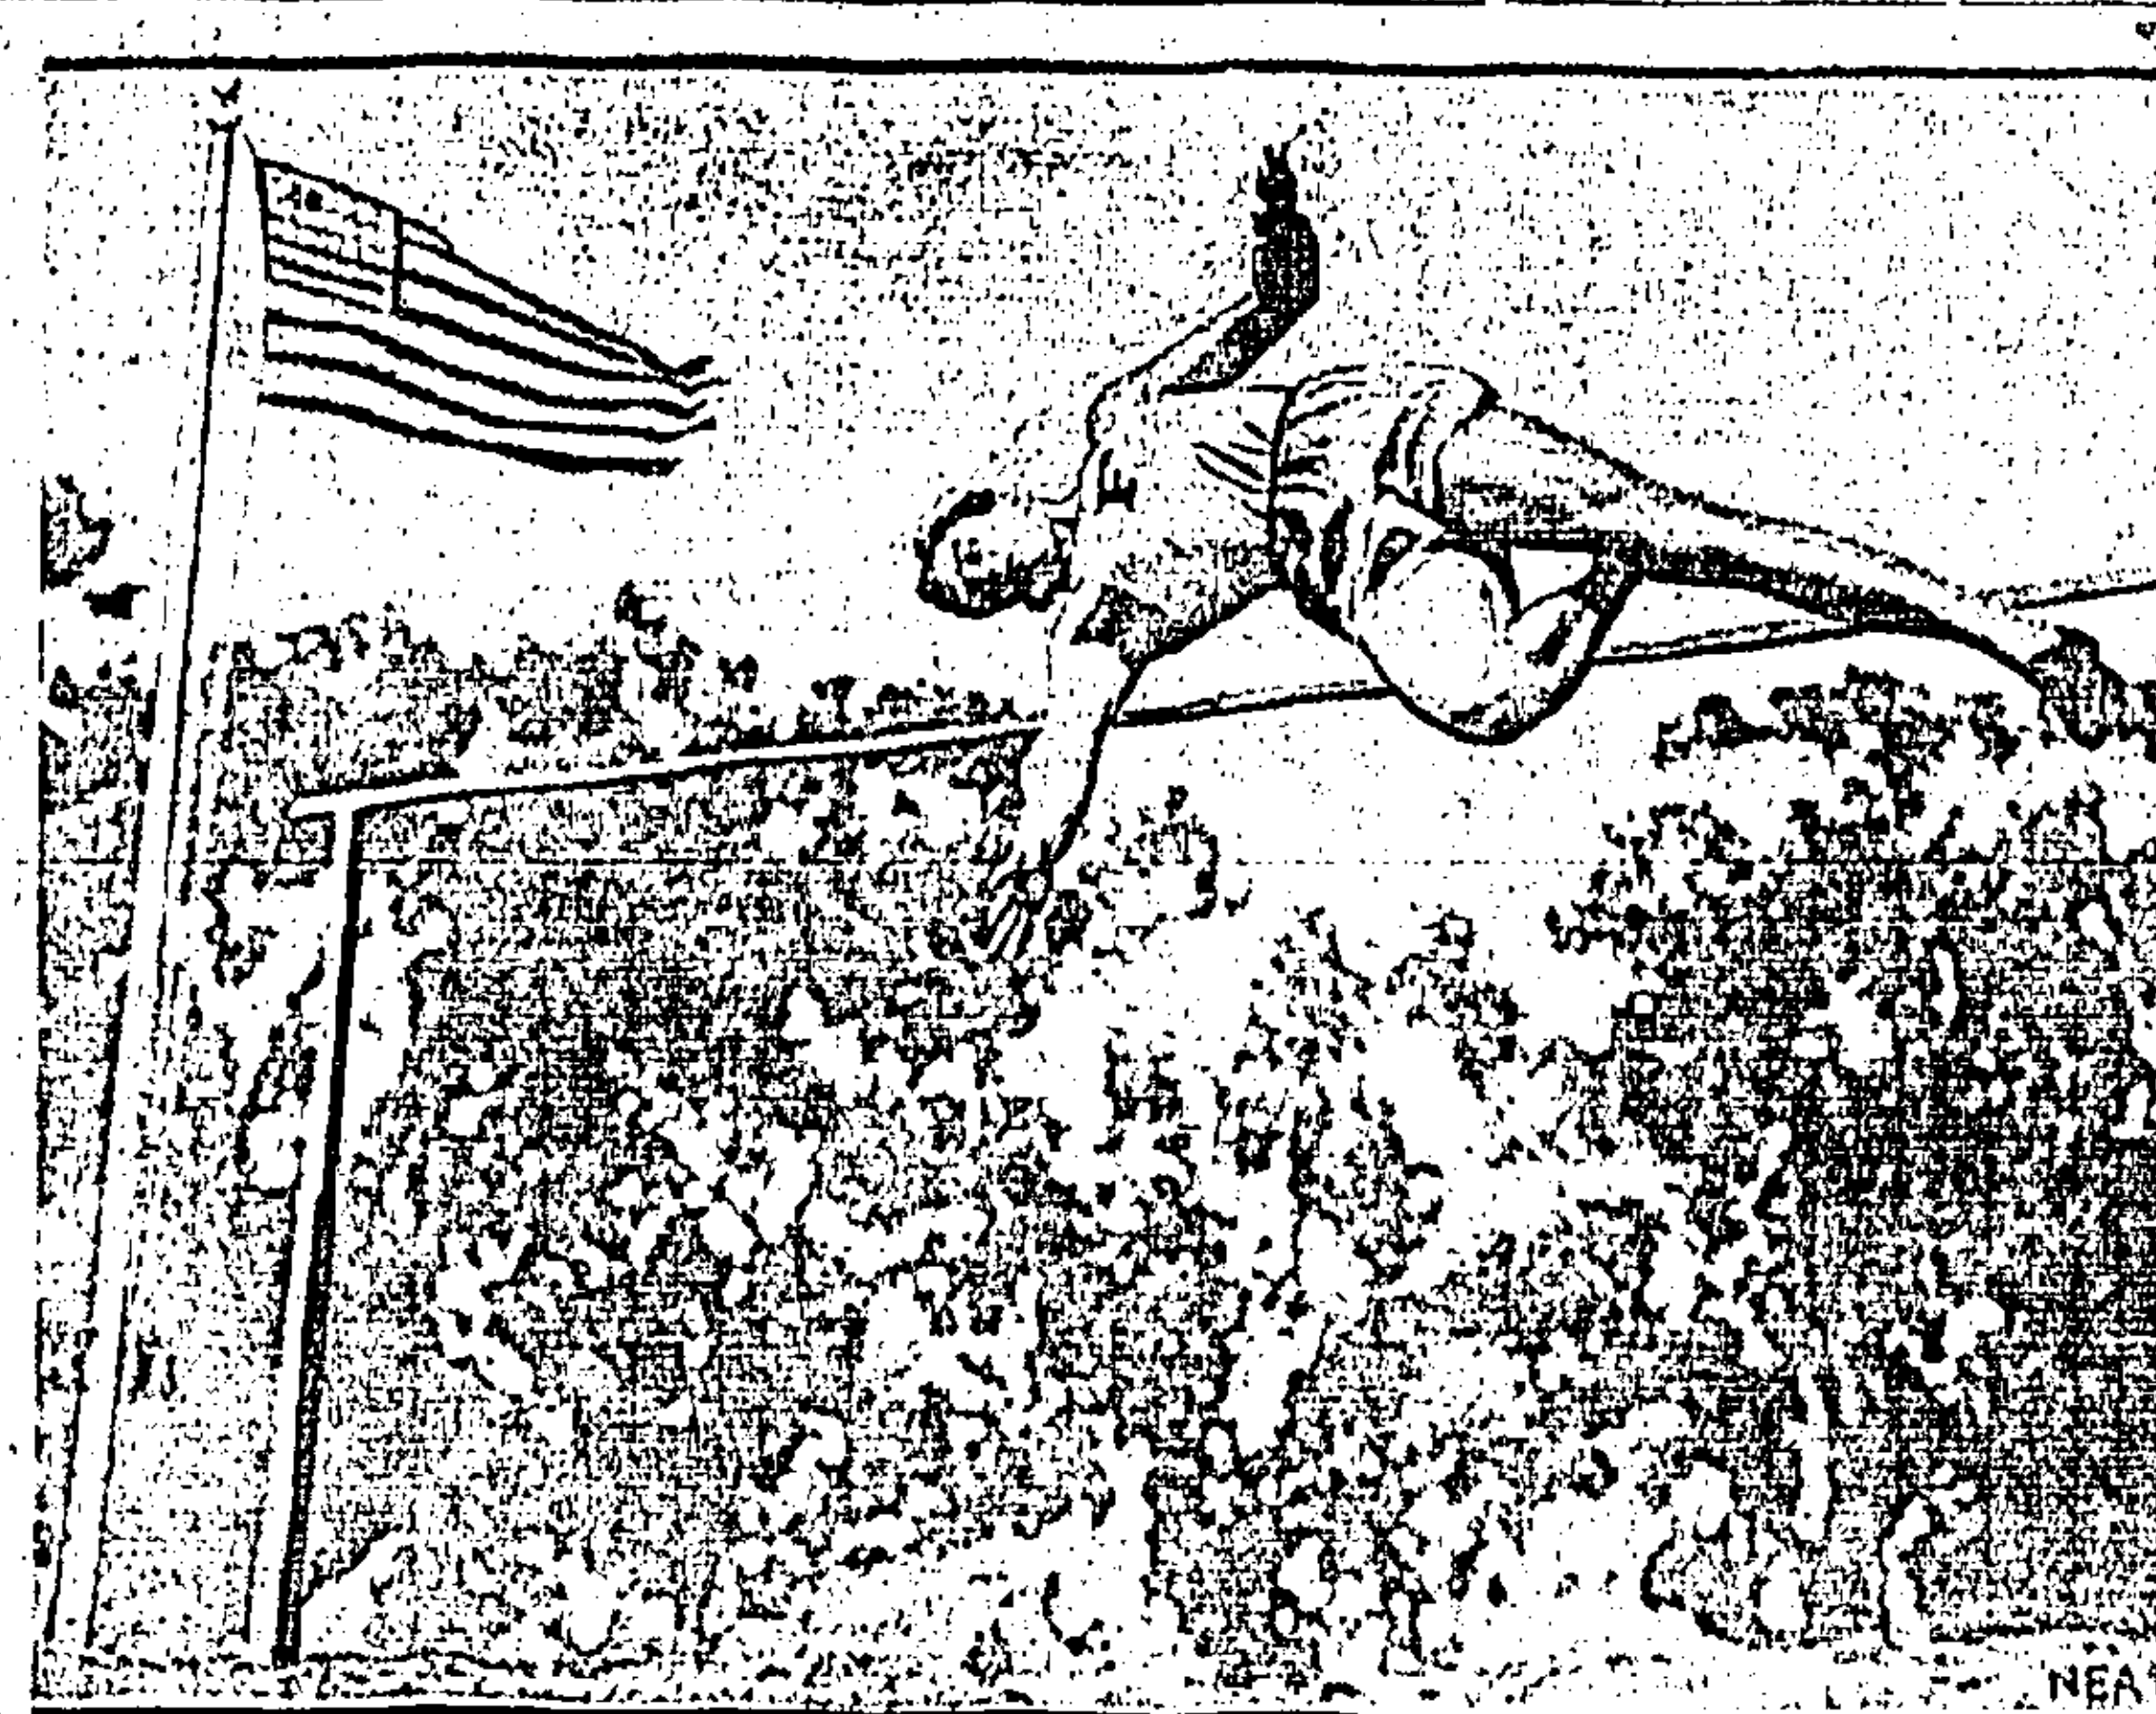

Next Sunday it is intended to explore the many tracks in the area between Lyemun, Sailing and Taiipo. This locality offers considerable scope for the wheel of the pottering cyclist, and with Mr. H. A. G. Keates as guide, an undoubtedly pleasant spin will be enjoyed. The rendezvous will be, as usual, the Star Ferry at 8.15 a.m. All cyclists are extended a cordial welcome.

The duties of Hon. Secretary will temporarily be carried out by Mr. H. A. G. Keates at Wellington Barracks during the illness of Mr. H. G. Crayford.

The winter programme of the Club is already the subject of much discussion by the Committee and Members. Advance information reveals that the events include two tourist time trials over a 50-mile course. This distance is to be covered inside 4 hours on fully equipped machines, and with one compulsory halt for a light meal which will be provided by the Club.

Also included is a hill-climbing competition, a free-wheel competition, and probably in January next, a 25-mile Open road race. Suitable awards are being arranged for the last three events, whilst to all who beat the allotted time in the tourist events a specially designed certificate will be presented.

When Walter Marty, Fresno State Teachers' College champion high jumper, leaped 6 feet 9 1/4 inches in a recent meet, the mark was disallowed officially because a required number of official judges was not present. Competing against Stanford at Palo Alto and using the same pit as in the previous jump, he scaled 6 feet 9 1/4 inches to destroy the 10-year-old world record. Plenty of A. A. U. officials were on hand to approve the mark he is seen above establishing.

HOME FOOTBALL ACTIVITIES

David Jack To Manage Southend: New Forwards For Boscombe

Although the football season closed over a month ago, interest in the activities of the leading English clubs is still alive, and below will be found some of the important transfers and retentions made as soon as the season ended. Several clubs are seeking to dispense with the services of notable players, while others are remaining content with the majority of those who did yeoman service during last season.

JACK TO MANAGE SOUTHEND

Highbury Post For P. McWilliam

London, May 10. David Jack, the Arsenal and England forward, has accepted the position as manager to Southend United. He will commence his new duties on Monday.

Jack, for whom Arsenal paid Bolton Wanderers £10,750, which to this day remains a record transfer fee, will not find Southend a strange place, for he spent his school days there at a time when his father, Bob Jack, who now manages Plymouth Argyle, held a similar post with the Southend club.

Peter McWilliam, the former manager of Tottenham Hotspur, and until recently in charge of Middlesbrough's affairs, is expected to join the Arsenal staff in the near future, not as manager, but in the capacity of "scout."

BOSCOMBE'S THREE NEW FORWARDS

Mortimer Leaves Brentford

London, May 10. Boscombe yesterday signed three new forwards in Jack Richardson, a young centre-forward from Kettering, who scored 71 goals last season; Robert Mortimer, outside right from Brentford, who was formerly with Bolton Wanderers, and B. Cameron, inside-forward from Middlesbrough.

The following have re-signed for Boscombe: Gold, Parker, Randall, L. Smith, Moralee, Dawes, Fletcher, White.

All the Watford players who have been offered terms have re-signed with the exception of McLaughlin and Brown. McPherson has also been retained.

Folkstone have signed W. Armory, right-half, and H. F. Tinklin, outside-left, from Nuneaton, and Roy Jenkins, of Ashford.

DERBY AND POMPEY RECRUITS

London, May 10. Udall, the Leicester outside-right, signed for Derby County in London yesterday and proceeded with his new club on their German tour.

Portsmouth have signed two Bath City players, C. Willey, a 17-year-old outside-left, and C.

Park, an inside-left. Of Millwall's players these have been placed on the open-to-transfer list:

Wilson (goal), Sweetman (back), Horton, Ranson, Bond, Colquhoun, Collins and Poxton (forwards).

Free transfers have been granted to: Graham, Collard, Hockings, McMillan, Gallacher, Moseley, Blaxham and Fishlock.

Ranson, who was taken ill on Saturday, is now well again. Brighton have re-signed Bdown. Alex Wright (goalkeeper) and Ivill (back) have re-signed for Charlton. Manager Seed expects to arrange for the transfers of two or three new players almost immediately, one an international forward.

Liddle, the Gillingham outside-left, has joined Coventry City.

CUPS FOR POMPEY

"SAINTS" TROUNCED

Portsmouth beat Southampton by four goals to one in the annual match for the Pickford and Hospital Cups.

Portsmouth was the first score. Rutherford netting from close range. Play, however, was very even and Southampton deserved the equalising goal when Tully forced a cross-kick by Holt into the net. Breviss played very well in the Southampton team and the teams were still level at the interval.

In the second half, combining cleverly, Portsmouth went ahead when Rutherford dropped a centre on to the head of Weddle. The Pompey leader had hard luck when two shots hit the crossbar.

J. Smith placed Portsmouth further ahead with a magnificent drive from 30 yards range and Worrall claimed the visitors' fourth goal.

Allen played a grand game at centre half for Portsmouth and Jack Smith, who did most of the scheming, kept the Pompey attack together cleverly.

Southampton: Scriven; Bradford, Roberts; Woodhouse, Ward, Luckett, Neal, Brewis, Silletts, Holt, Tully.

Portsmouth: Gillman; Mackrell Smith (W); Nichol, Allen, Thackeray; Worrall, Smith, (J), Weddle, Bagley, Rutherford.

IMPORTANT TENNIS ENCOUNTERS

IN THE LEAGUE THIS WEEK

I.R.C. SENIORS AT S.C.A.A.

NEW CHALLENGE IN C DIV.

(By "Veritas").

With to-day a public holiday, no programme for the Mixed Doubles section of the tennis league has been arranged, but a full complement of matches are scheduled later in the week for the A, B, and C Divisions.

Quite the most interesting tie in the senior division to-morrow is the visit of the Indian Recreation Club to South China. The latter, by their trouncing of the Hongkong Cricket Club. The Indians, although enjoying a clean slate to date, will have to be on their best form to return with the points, and it is quite on the cards that the Athletic players will share the spoils.

CHALLENGE TO C.R.C.

The C.R.C., and Recreio appear to have easy matches in the "B" Division on Thursday, and the Cricket Club should garner their first full points of the season from the University. Better support for Burnett and Lewis is needed if the K.C.C., are to win against South China.

There are no serious clashes in the "C" Division on Friday, but after seeing the South China Athletic team in action against the K.C.C., last week, I feel that they are going to offer the Chinese Recreation Club a very severe challenge. Among the lesser lights, the Bowling Green may worry the K.C.C., and the Kowloon Dockers can look forward to a couple of points from the C.B.A.

Craigengower, who are keeping well up with the leaders, ought not to fear anything in their visit to the Police Recreation Club.

Runs Flow Freely From Kent Willow

COUNTY TEAM'S BIG SCORING

(By "Veritas").

Kent's record breaking score of 803 for 4 wickets compiled against Essex last week, is a reminder that the Hop County's batsmen have been scoring more freely than any of their contemporaries to date this season.

An investigation shows that of the seven county matches played, five of them have seen Kent total between 500 and 800 runs. In fact their last five matches have reaped them an aggregate of 3,182 runs—an average of over 600 runs a match—which is quite out of the ordinary.

Their first two encounters, against Glamorgan and Essex respectively brought in only 706 runs for three innings. Nevertheless their total number of runs scored to date in county matches is 3,987, giving an average of 598 runs a match. Their average score per innings is no less than 962.

LAWN BOWLS

POSTPONEMENT OF LEAGUE FIXTURES

The heavy downpour of rain at three o'clock on Saturday afternoon caused the complete abandonment of the local Lawn Bowls League matches, this being the first interruption of the season.

One of the Open Rinks Championship matches was to have been played off yesterday afternoon on the Club de Recreio green between the Kowloon Dock rink composed of G. Craig, J. Kempton, W. Greig and J. C. Brown and the quartette from the Kowloon Cricket Club consisting of P. O. Dunne, W. C. Simpson, J. W. M. Brown and J. S. Dinnery, but owing to the rain this fixture had to be postponed. As today is the last day for the completion of the first round matches it is possible that the fixture will be decided this afternoon.

Owing to a typographical error on Saturday it was stated that the second round of the rinks championship had to be concluded by June 28. This should have read June 18.

HUNTING ROMANCE

Mr. Johnstone Finds Bride In Yorkshire

A romance of the chase was to have culminated last month, according to Home papers, by the marriage, at Richmond Parish Church, of Mr. John Johnstone, of Hallenath, Dumfriesshire, and Miss Doris Lovaine Cradock, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Cradock, of Shilcliffe Lodge, Richmond, Yorkshire.

Coming of a family closely associated with hunting for many years, Miss Cradock is one of the most popular riders with the Zealand under the guidance of the late Mr. Herbert Straker, M.C., she learnt to ride at the age of eight, and has been following the Zealand Hounds regularly ever since. Miss Cradock was educated privately with her cousin, Lady Innam, and the hunting association then formed has continued to this day, and not least, when with the hounds.

Mr. Johnstone, who is a prominent figure in racing circles, goes to Hartforth, the old home of the Cradock family, for the hunting season, being particularly fond of the Zealand country. He is one of the National Hunt Stewards. Mr. Johnstone's career on the turf began at the age of 16, when he won his first point-to-point while a scholar at Eton. Business dealings took him to China, and it was at the Hongkong Jockey Club meeting in 1903 that he won his first flat race. He later became steward of both the Hongkong Jockey Club and the Shanghai Race Club, and assisted in founding the International Recreation Club at Kiangwan. As an owner and amateur, Mr. Johnstone won nearly a thousand races in China and Hongkong, including all the important events. He was a member of the Hongkong Legislative Council and Chairman of the Hongkong Chamber of Commerce, besides filling many important offices in Shanghai when at the head of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson & Co. He was responsible for reviving the popular Ewo Handicap.—N. C. D. News.

Liverpool Youths Now Play American Diamond Game

DENIS MOONEY, NOMINATED AS FATHER OF BASEBALL IN ENGLAND

Liverpool. Should organized baseball ever decide to erect a giant super-memorial to the pillars of the game, there must be found a niche somewhere therein for the figure of Denis Mooney, the father of baseball in England.

The figure of Denis Mooney would be that of a large Irishman, with blue eyes and close-cropped grey mustache, surmounted by a black bowler tilted well forward. He might be depicted brandishing a baseball bat and defying the powers of darkness. The darkness, of course, would represent that grand old British pastime, cricket. For a dozen years Denis Mooney has been fighting to give baseball a foothold in England. He has succeeded just this year in organizing on a sound basis the "National Baseball Association" in Liverpool. There are 33 clubs, divided into three divisions and sworn to the "definite purpose of furthering 100 per cent. American baseball."

HEYDLER FURNISHES TROPHY.

To the champions will go the John M. Heydler Trophy, a handsome silver cup donated by the president of the National league. Mooney wrote Heydler that they needed a cup and back one came. It sits now in the window of a sporting goods store, surrounded by baseball paraphernalia. Thus baseball has its foothold in England and Mooney says, with a rich brogue, that he will live to see the game supplant cricket in this country.

But the real story lies in Mooney's long, stubborn campaign to make Liverpool's youngsters baseball conscious. Suppose, for instance, that a man named Zille decided he would convince the youth of Cleveland, Ohio, that baseball really was just a waste of time and that they should turn to cricket to get the ultimate in action. He would probably be told to move along ere the squirrels spotted him. So it was with Denis Mooney here.

THREE SONS FORM NUCLEUS.

"Finally I figured I'd have to get 'em when they were just peepers," confided Mooney. With his three young sons was an athlete who had been in America for a time to coach them.

Their principal opponents at first were teams from Japanese and American ships that docked at Liverpool. The visitors always won, but it got to where crowds turned out. They liked the game, and soon after teams sprouted up around Liverpool. Now the National Baseball Association has a lease from May to September on one of the finest stadiums in England.

Where Mooney developed his love for baseball even he does not know for certain. He has never been to America, has never seen start, he organized his team several years ago and found a really good team in action. Yet he loves the game with a devotion that makes any other topic of conversation in his presence virtually impossible.

FRENCH MASS FLIGHT

SUCCESSFUL END TO DIFFICULT TEST

The flight was recently completed by General Vuillemin's Air Squadron across the African Continent. This flight of 25,000 kilometres constitutes in point of distance the greatest achievement accomplished by so large a number of aeroplanes. It was an exercise in joint air navigation, and, more particularly, a test of the practical value of French aircraft, as regards both personnel and material. The crews were chosen from among all manner of units, while the material used was strictly of standard type, even in the matter of spare parts.

There were two mishaps, of common occurrence, the one in Spain, the other in Morocco, which eliminated two machines at the very beginning. Yet the airman had all sorts of difficulties to contend with, the severity of which was increased by the atmospheric conditions: the days, in Africa, very hot at times, are followed by extremely cold nights. The crews, in some cases, had to put in five, six, or seven hours' flight under the scorching rays of the sun, after a most uncomfortable night, the mechanics sometimes having to exercise the utmost ingenuity to ensure the smooth working of their engines.

Occasionally, it was found necessary to fill tanks twice in the same day by temporary shifts and under particularly risky conditions. The prompt refuelling of 28 machines when short-handed as regards personnel and with pumps not adapted to the type of machine constitutes a regular problem. Last, but not least, the all-pervading sand of the desert is a bitter foe to the engines.

These are 'but special instances, but they serve to bring home to us the stubborn perseverance dis-

Mr. H. J. Armstrong, for Chan Lam and Lau Hing, pleaded not guilty.

Hung Lu, also pleaded not guilty, and hearing of the case was fixed for 11.30 a.m. on June 7.

One case each of typhoid and mumps fever were reported to the local health authorities on Friday. played from beginning to end of the experiment successfully carried out by the dauntless team led by General Vuillemin.

NEW ROCK

GEOLOGICAL PUZZLE AT CANBERRA

Searching for a new road-metal near Canberra, the Australian Government Geological Adviser, (Dr. Woolnough) has stumbled upon a geological problem which so far has baffled him.

Near the foot of a hill he discovered an extensive sheet of a peculiar rock entirely new to him and presenting anomalous and extraordinary features, which, he says, will take considerable concentrated effort to elucidate.

The rock is hard, yet it crushes without damage to the machinery. It appears to be a kind of intermediate between the sedimentary and volcanic formations which are found round Canberra.

One feature is the presence throughout the close-grained bluish rock of tiny crystals, says Austral News.

Dr. Woolnough has never before seen a similar rock.

Canberra's foundation stones were really laid by coral insects. Numerous outcrops of limestone have been discovered in and around the city area. They were relics of the time—some million years, probably—when the site of Australia's capital was beneath the sea which covered practically the whole of Australia.

K.C. CRITIC OF ROAD PENALTIES

Driving Ban More Salutory Than Prison

The suggestion that disqualification from driving is a more salutory punishment for offending motorists, than imprisonment was made by Sir Walter Greaves-Lord, K.C., Recorder of Manchester, appearing at Chester Quarter Sessions, for Francis William Hodson, of Oxton, Birkenhead, who appealed against a sentence of a month's imprisonment for driving a car while under the influence of drink.

Sir Walter, speaking of the Home Office circular on motoring penalties, remarked, "I cannot help thinking that the magistrates took rather a mistaken view of the circular. It is not, after all, an attempt to dictate to magistrates. Magistrates should take the Act as preventive without sending to prison."

"I have often felt that sufficient regard is not given by them to their great powers to disqualify from driving."

The Recorder, Mr. R. M. Montgomery, K.C., varied the sentence to a fine of £20, with disqualification for seven years.
